Gen. Meyers Charges Hughes Lied on Stand; Offered Job, He Says

Loan Proposition Initiated by Official Of Firm, Declares Former Army Officer

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Maj. Gen. Bennett Meyers, retired chief of the Army Air Forces Materiel Command, yesterday branded as "damnable, unadulterated lies" charges that he had asked Howard Hughes for a job and a $200,000 loan during the war.

In an explosive answer to testimony from the millionaire plane-builder, Meyers told the Senate War Investigating Subcommittee that the facts were just the other way around.

Hughes, he shouted in tones that echoed down the Senate corridors, had repeatedly offered him a job during the war and a Hughes company official had been the one who proposed a loan—and it was not $200,000 that was suggested but $250,000.

Asks McCarthy Recalled

Meyers demanded that the committee confront him with Neil McCarthy, prominent Los Angeles attorney, and onetime Hughes' vice president who first gave the testimony concerning the attempted "deal."

A few hours earlier the airplane builder-designer had again reiterated under oath his confirmation of McCarthy's earlier testimony which was given in closed session a month ago.

Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) assured Meyers the committee was making every attempt to locate McCarthy and bring him to Washington to testify.

Meyers took the stand after he had listened without expression to Lieut. Gen. Barney Giles, wartime deputy chief of staff of the Army Air Forces, say that any officer who attempted to borrow money from a war contractor during the war should be "put in jail and kept there."

"Disrespect for Truth"

Responding to a question submitted by Meyers, Giles had stated he did not think Meyers would solicit such a loan.

Meyers told the committee that he had listened to all of the testimony from Hughes and that the millionaire pilot had testified with a "most careless disrespect for the truth."

The handsome airman-movie producer, who was sitting near, declined to comment on Meyers' testimony.

"I said in my testimony yesterday that I didn't want to say anything," he said.

Miss. Legislature Called Hurriedly In Strike Violence

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 11 (AP)—Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi called the Legislature into special session on 24 hours' notice today to deal with violence growing out of a prolonged strike of bus drivers. The Governor summoned the Assembly to meet at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. He said he would advocate legislation to make it a penalty offense to fire on a moving bus. The law now applies only to trains.

The Governor also is expected to ask funds to hire special investigators to probe shootings, stonings and bombings of vehicles and property of Southern Bus Lines, Inc.

The bus strike, which began May 20, involves the bus line and the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America (AFL). Vehicles of the company, operated by newly hired, nonunion drivers, have been fired upon and stoned, and the Hattiesburg (Miss.) terminal recently was damaged by a bomb blast. There also have been fist-fights, and Civil and Criminal Court actions.

Armistice Day, 1947...

UNDAMPENED SPIRIT—A cold rain beat down on Arlington Cemetery yesterday as the Nation paid tribute to the dead of two wars at Armistice Day rites, but it failed to dampen the spirit of those who attended. Among them were the one-armed veteran (right), an unidentified member of the American Legion guard of honor, with a book for a hand, and Mrs. Kathleen Howard Curry, wife of Capt. Hugh Curry, leader of the Army Band.

A Chest Agency Friendship House Sees Old Timers

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

It was Homecoming Day at Friendship House yesterday.

While the rain beat down to darken an already dreary day, scores of persons entered the inviting portals at 619 D st. se. to renew again the idea that each person should be friendly to another.

For it is this concept of neighborliness—the idea of the value of the individual—around which Friendship House has grown and had its being.

Yesterday, there was present at Friendship House Mrs. Alice Alvey, 406 16th st. se., a member of the first Motherhood Club. There was a gentleman there who called himself one of "the originals—the antiques," a group who had the idea back in 1904 that it would be worthwhile to let people in that Southeast neighborhood know they had friends.

From 2 to 50 Rooms
These young people who coined their own definition of neighborliness thought enough of their idea to back it with funds they had to rent a headquarters, two rooms in a house. That headquarters has with shifting scene and through gift and donation, and public support, grown to 60 rooms, in which a myriad of activities are always under way.

Truman Leads In Honoring 2 Wars' Dead

Preparedness Urged
By Leaders in Rites
At Tomb of Unknown

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Amidst gray skies and a cold, driving rain, thousands in the Greater Washington area yesterday joined with President Truman to honor the dead of two world wars.

The steady Armistice Day downpour soaked the residents, who gathered the inclement weather to brave at the many services of the day. Others halted their daily routines in homes and offices for the traditional moment of silence at 11 a. m.

President Truman attended the principal ceremony of the day at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery. Standing erect, the Chief Executive remained bareheaded as the Army Band played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

During the silent moment which followed, marking the minute 29 years ago when World War I ended, he held his black homburg hat over his head as the rain poured over the marble monument.

Places Wreath at Base
He then stepped forward and placed a large wreath of yellow chrysanthemums at the base of the tomb and stood rigidly at attention while an Army bugler sounded "Taps."

The President did not speak, but the somber crowd of 2500 joined

UAW Ousts Addes, Foe Of Reuther

Annual Convention
Votes 4820 to 2572
To Make Emil Mazey
Secretary-Treasurer

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 11.—George F. Addes, leader of the faction in opposition to President Walter P. Reuther of the CIO United Auto Workers, was decisively trounced tonight in the key election of the union's annual convention.

Running for reelection as secretary-treasurer of the union, Addes was defeated 4820 to 2572 by Emil Mazey, Detroit regional director of the UAW, backed by Reuther.

Addes, who held his position since the organization of the union 11 years ago, was the strongest candidate of the anti-Reuther bloc. He was backed by the left wing elements in the union and his contest was the one on which that group had pinned their highest hopes.

His defeat, therefore, virtually assured a similar sad fate for the other, less strong, members of his ticket. They are R. J. Thomas and Richard Leonard, running for reelection as union vice presidents.

It appeared certain that their opponents, Richard Gosser, Toledo regional director, and John Livingston, southwest regional director, will swamp them in the votes scheduled for tomorrow. Both are backed by Reuther.

Mazey's triumph served to consolidate Reuther's and his right wing bloc's control of the union, after a bitter fight of a year and one-half.

In recent months, Reuther's popularity had grown to a point where the Addes-Thomas-Leonard group dared not run a candidate against him for the presidential post. Accordingly, in a process earlier today which was supposed to be an election but was really a demonstration of strength, Reuther walked away with the president's job for another year.

His triumph came at the end of a four-hour roll call of the 2000 delegates to the big union's annual convention. The roll call was necessitated not because he had real opposition, but because two obscure candidates wanted to make a gesture of protest.

They were John de Vito, of the Fisher Body plant in Cleveland, and Edward Murphy of an amalgamated local union in Detroit.

The unofficial result of the vote was 5503 for Reuther, 303 for de Vito, 28 for Murphy, and 1084 for the two obscure candidates.

'Eat Hens' Drive Goal Is 136-Million Slash in Flocks

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP)—A Nation-wide "eat hens to help" campaign was started today by the Poultry and Egg National Board—four days after suspension of poultryless Thursdays.

The board, consumer information service of the poultry and egg industry, said the campaign was designed to cull flocks of 136 million chickens by January 1, at an estimated saving of 30 million bushels of grain.

The objective could be accomplished if every American family ate one hen a week for the next six weeks, the board said. Unofficial figures show that a hen a family week would use the 136 million fowls in less than four weeks.

The report was met by a profound official silence here. At the Atomic Energy Commission and other Government agencies, there was "no comment" on questions about the Paris story.

British Idlers Facing Draft For Labor

Decree Will Affect
500,000; Churchill
Sees Dictatorship
Confronting Nation

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—Britain tonight announced a sweeping labor draft under which 500,000 to 750,000 nonproductive Britons, ranging from idle peers to hat-check girls, will be forced to go to work.

All idle rich, gamblers, night club workers, street vendors and other in nonessential jobs who are physically fit for industrial labor will be drafted by government decree starting December 8.

The conscription will sweep up women between the ages of 18 and 41 and men from 18 to 51. The penalty for those who refuse to register for the draft will be two years imprisonment and $2000 fine. Conscripts may have their choice of going into the coal mines, agriculture or any other essential industry.

Peers Affected
A Labor ministry spokesman said the new decree would not apply to chorus girls and other professional entertainers or musicians playing in night clubs and carnivals.

(Newspapers quickly pointed out that many British lords and ladies would be subject to the labor decrees, the Associated Press said. The Star headlined: "Wartime sign-on ordered, even for peers.")

Labor Minister George Isaacs, in announcing details to the Commons, said the government decree would be promulgated as an extension of the direction of labor law. It was especially designed, he said, to draft those Britons known as "Spivs" and "Drones" who live without visible means of support.

Isaacs spoke after the Commons approved the decisive second reading of a government bill to curb the House of Lords.

The Labor majority defeated, 345 to 194, an amendment by Winston Churchill to kill the Lords bill on the ground that it lacks a mandate from the people and destroys constitutional safeguards.

Then the House approved the second reading without another record vote.

The government seeks to reduce from two years to one the time by which the Lords can hold up legislation by voting against it. The bill must still go through its third and final reading by tonight's vote was the big one.

Churchill asserted the bill was a step toward dictatorship. He accused the government of seeking a single-chamber parliament on a "to hell with the people" principle.

Amid angry shouts of "shame!" in which Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee joined, Churchill said: "It is a dictatorship we are facing—an incompetent dictatorship bent on the ruin of the life of this Parliament, the government may be replaced by a totalitarian oligarchy. It may well be that bankruptcy and actual starvation may come upon this island largely through this government's mismanagement."

Maniu Found Guilty, Given Life Sentence

Age Saves Romanian
From Hard Labor;
18 Others Convicted

Bucharest, Romania, Nov. 11 (AP)—A military tribunal of the Communist-led Romanian government today found 75-year-old Iuliu Maniu guilty of high treason and sentenced him to solitary confinement in prison for the remainder of his life.

Eighteen associates of the former Premier, head of the National Peasant Party, received sentences varying from life at hard labor to one year in jail. Of four tried in absentia, two received life sentences at hard labor.

Counsel for Maniu and his associates lodged formal appeals. Maniu, the Catholic leader of the anti-Communist opposition, was sentenced to an additional 10 years on other charges that included entering into relations with foreign powers—the United States and Britain—to overthrow the regime of Communist Premier Petru Groza.

Both the United States and Britain had protested the arrest and may protest the sentences.

Fortune Confiscated
Maniu steadfastly denied all the charges in the 14-day trial that opened October 29.

The maximum sentence of life imprisonment at hard labor was levied against Maniu and Ion Mihalache, Peasant Party vice president, because of their advanced age they were ordered to life in solitary confinement.

There is no death sentence for treason during peacetime in Romania. Maniu and Mihalache were also deprived of their personal fortune.

1948 Wheat May Not Meet U. S. Demands

Kansas Grain Men
Also Warn of Meat Shortage Next Year

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Topeka, Kans., Nov. 11.—The United States may find itself desperately short of wheat for its own use, let alone for export next summer. That is the warning sounded here in dry Kansas today by grain experts.

Added to that they predict that the meat supply situation will be "about equally serious." The State, which usually fattens hundreds of thousands of cattle and sheep on its growing wheat, this year is doing practically no feeding.

Kansas this year harvested approximately 300 million bushels of wheat on its vast, rolling prairies. According to its Republican Governor, Frank Carlson, it will do well to harvest one-third that next summer. It is impossible to find any to disagree with him—except a few who term his forecast too optimistic.

One Great Parched Plain
The situation in Kansas is virtually the same as in the Oklahoma and Texas Panhandle, only on a greater scale. Except for very isolated spots, the entire winter wheat belt is one, great parched plain.

According to Hubert L. Collins, Department of Agriculture statistician in Topeka, the "Kansas wheat prospects are the poorest in my 20 years of crop reporting here."

Observers with even longer experience state that the drought is the worst, for this critical period for wheat, in 60 years.

Official soil tests, made every few yards apart on three lines through the wheat belt, show the worst

Newark Blockades Channel Against Ex-USS New Mexico

Newark, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—This city's Navy—two 30-foot fireboats—was put on the alert today to guard the channel of Port Newark against any attempt to bring the onetime battleship New Mexico here for scrapping.

The former USS New Mexico, since decommissioned and sold to Lipsett, Inc., for scrap, is under tow from Boston. It is expected in New York harbor by 10 a. m. The showdown is set for Thursday morning. However, before the "zero hour," Mayor Vincent J. Murphy of Newark, who ordered the fireboats

Aid Estimates For All Nations Through June 30 Total 2.657 Billion

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Secretary of State George C. Marshall yesterday estimated the 15-month cost of economic assistance to China at 300 million dollars.

First figures on the Far Eastern phase of the world recovery program were presented as Marshall was cross-examined by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The Secretary figured aid to China at around 20 million dollars a month and hinted definite proposals shortly to be submitted will feature efforts to stabilize China's inflated currency.

He set the total amount Congress will be asked to appropriate for interim aid and recovery measures between now and June 30, 1948, at $2,657,000,000.

This includes a 60-million-dollar first installment on aid to China, 597 million dollars for interim relief to France, Italy and Austria; $1,500,000,000 for the first three months of long-range (Marshall Plan) aid, and 500 million dollars for Army-occupied areas.

The Senate committee, taking its first detailed look at both stopgap and long-range programs, also heard:

1. Lewis W. Douglas, Ambassador to Britain, who may be designated special United States representative for the European recovery. Douglas warned it will be "too late" next spring to enact a long-range recovery program if Congress fails to speed emergency help meanwhile.

2. Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett. Under questioning, Lovett said the State Department will ask Congress to authorize the entire four-year, long-range program, but appropriate only for the first 15 months.

Marshall said the State Department has been trying since last May to find a concrete way to help China, now suffering from inflation "to an extraordinary degree." Details Not Disclosed

"I think we have found it," he said. Beyond estimates of the cost, he did not disclose details.

Marshall was questioned closely by Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and other Senators on plans for restoring Germany's productive capacity.

"There is no question in my mind that Germany is the heart of Europe's economic life," Marshall said. "I think it is of vital importance that the economy of Germany be restored to a self-supporting basis, having in mind not increasing her war potential."

He said there is a fear, however, "on the part of propagandized people" that we are about to

Estimates Too High, Taft Declares

Senator Robert A. Taft yesterday announced his "personal" opposition to spending $2,657,000,000 on foreign economic aid through June 30, 1948.

The Senate Republican policy chief hit specifically at a proposal by Secretary of State George C. Marshall that Congress appropriate that much for all foreign aid programs through the current fiscal year.

Charging Administration aid estimates are "excessive" and will "endanger America's economy," he said.

"I would be absolutely opposed to any such increase in this fiscal year's figures," he said.

Signaling at least a sharp debate on the precise amount of aid, the recently announced Presidential candidate said he favors going ahead with both stopgap and long range aid but the Administration estimates are too high.

Taft said he hasn't consulted other members of the Senate Republican Policy Committee which will meet here tomorrow but will present his own views to that group.

Informed of his statement, Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (Mich.), another key GOP policy-maker, declined comment.

Taft told a press conference he

N. H. Test Facing Dewey and Stassen

Against Coup Fighting Is Reported In Siam

Bangkok, Siam, Nov. 11 (AP).—The Siamese military command under Pibul Songgram disclosed today that a "peoples' resistance force" was waging armed opposition to the regime established by the wartime dictator-premier in a swift coup on Sunday.

The military refused to say whether the fighting had flared or estimate the strength of the opposition.

Lieut. Gen. Phin Chunhawan, deputy commander of the forces under Songgram, said the opposition was believed to be made up of elements of a "Free Thai" movement.

He said there was no military activity in Bangkok or around the main army stations at Petchburi, Prachuab or Rajaburi, and expressed confidence the army could easily crush all opposition.

(The United Press reported that King Phumiphon Aduldet was informed two months in advance of the anticipated military coup d'état which overthrew the Siamese government last Sunday.)

(King Phumiphon, 19, is attending school in Switzerland.)

(Col. Luang Kas Songkham, a government spokesman, said the king was informed of the intended revolt by secret code.)

(Colonel Songkham is assistant to Field Marshal Songgram, wartime puppet Premier of Siam under the Japanese and leader of the military clique which staged the revolt.)

Burning Plane, 25 on Board, Lands Safely

Gallup, N. M., Nov. 11 (AP).—A huge four-motored DC-6 passenger plane of American Airlines caught fire in the air today but made a safe emergency landing on the local airfield without injury to its 21 passengers and crew of four.

It was the second fire involving a DC-6 within two weeks. In the other, the pilot crashed within the sight of an emergency airfield at Bryce Canyon, Utah, and all on board—48 passengers and the crew of four—were killed.

The fire in the Bryce Canyon DC-6 started in the baggage compartment of unknown cause. Today's fire was said to be in the "fuselage between the baggage compartments." Captain Evan W. Chatfield, Tulsa, Okla., was warned of it by smoke detection instruments soon after the plane passed over Gallup en route from San Francisco to Tulsa, Okla. He turned the knob releasing fire-quenching chemicals in the baggage compartment, which is inaccessible in flight, and turned back to Gallup.

"We discovered the fire no more than five minutes after we had passed over the Gallup airport," Captain Chatfield said. "We circled and came in from the north. The cockpit and cabin were filled with smoke and I couldn't see well. I knew when I passed the end of the runway but I couldn't see it."

The plane landed 100 yards to the side of the regular concrete strip.

Gallup residents saw the plane as it dashed for Thunderhead Airport, trailing smoke and a bright splash of flames from its underbelly. Fire trucks and ambulances already were lined up when Captain Chatfield brought her down.

Airport attendants pushed up the disembarking stairs and the passengers, showing remarkable calm, filed out of the smoke-filled cabin, assisted by Gallup firemen. Once all the passengers and the crew were out, the firemen set to work on the flames and had them extinguished in 15 minutes.

Miss Evelyn Aptiz, one of the two hostesses, said her passengers "were very calm. They knew something was the matter because of the smoke, but no one had anything to say about it. I was a little jittery myself, so I imagine they were all nervous, too. I've never been aboard a burning plane before."

After first denying that there had been a fire aboard the plane, American Airlines officials in New York acknowledged that "the skin of the fuselage near the cargo compartment had been damaged by flames."

The airline said the plane was its Flight 10, which left San Francisco at 9 a. m. PST, and was due in New York at 11:40 p. m. EST tonight after stops in Tulsa and Washington. The landing was made at Gallup at 12:14 p. m. MST (2:14 p. m. EST).

First Primary Race For GOP Nomination Slated for March 9

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

New York, Nov. 11.—The first chips-down battle for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948 will come in four months in New Hampshire.

Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York will slug it out there in a primary election on March 9. It will be the first test of strength in the "wide open" GOP race.

Stassen, an outright candidate, who flew to New York today to start off a 12-State political tour, announced formally that he would go into the New Hampshire primary. His statement was given to reporters on his campaign plane, flying up from Washington.

Governor Dewey, who has not yet avowed his candidacy, was silent in Albany, but it was learned that his supporters will enter a slate of delegates in New Hampshire favoring him for a second Republican nomination in '48.

Delegates At Stake

Eight delegates to the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia will be at stake in this curtain raiser in New England, four to be selected in districts and four at large.

So far as is known, no other aspirants for the presidency plan to enter the New Hampshire contest. Senator H. Styles Bridges has indicated he has no intention of being a favorite-son candidate this time.

In 1944, when New Hampshire was entitled to 11 delegates, the Wendell Willkie ran away with the primary. He won eight of the delegates. Dewey got one, and two were unpledged.

This, no doubt, was a factor in Stassen's decision to go into the New Hampshire primary. The big fellow, who was Willkie's floor manager in 1940, is eager to demonstrate that he has vote-getting power away from his native Minnesota.

Might Suffer Setback

Of course, there is the danger that he might suffer a setback too late last night heard Mr. Fulton J. Sheen contrast political and spiritual sacrifices.

Addressing a service concluding the 40 hours' devotion at St. Stephen's Catholic Church, 25th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., Mr. Sheen said, in part:

"When they (the people) sacrifice themselves in political order such as totalitarianism, they never get themselves back again. Their personality and individuality is lost forever in a group. When you offer yourself to the mass, you get yourself back again."

Stassen Explains Reasons

Stassen himself explained that, under the New Hampshire system, a delegate can commit himself to support a candidate irrevocably or he can merely indicate that he is favorably disposed toward a particular candidate.

The Minnesotaan apparently thinks it is wrong for a candidate to hog-tie a delegate and hold him in line even when defeat seems certain.

Today's announcement was the second of its kind for Stassen. He had previously announced that he would enter the Wisconsin preferential primary in April. The prospect is that he will collide with Governor Dewey in the "Badger State, too."

Headwinds Force Big Delta Landing Of 'Flivver Fliers'

Big Delta, Alaska, Nov. 11 (AP).—Clifford Evans and George Truman, globe-girdling, "flivver plane" fliers, landed here at 3:45 p. m. (PST) (6:45 p. m. EST.) today after strong headwinds forced them to abandon an attempt to reach Whitehorse, Y. T.

The Piper Cub pilots created some anxiety here when they did not appear for a scheduled stop after taking off from Anchorage. Weather along the route the fliers were following was poor with snow falling and temperatures hovering around the 25 degree mark.

An Army B-29 and a Navy PBX which have been shepherding the pair since their Japan takeoff turned back at Anchorage, and the "flivver plane" pilots were on their own.

Meanwhile, 9000 industrial gas workers struck for increased pensions and other benefits today in Rome, Naples, Florence, Milan and Turin.

Police described political violence as the most widespread since the partisans' bloody cleanup of Fascists during the summer of 1945.

Communist Alfredo Bottazzi, former member of the partisan Matteotti brigade, was caned to death by unidentified men near Bologna yesterday, police said.

2-Hour Flights Across U. S.?

Arusa, Calif., Nov. 11 (NYHT).—The probability in the next decade of routine, two-hour, coast-to-coast airplane flights with human passengers was disclosed here today by the Aerojet Engineering Co., largest builders of rocket engines in the world.

At a demonstration of new rocket motors being built for the Navy, the company's research department revealed that such flights will be possible with better-than-1000-mile-an-hour airplanes employing ramjet engines for their main power, plus rockets for take-off or launching.

The Aerojet Co.'s scientists disclosed further that giant rocket engines capable of making a reality air-of the dreams of Jules Verne and other writers of fanciful fiction, by carrying human observers on trips throughout the limits of the earth's atmosphere and even into outer space, already were in a state of "realistic planning." A rocket plane weighing 20,000 pounds loaded, with five passengers, and powered by a liquid-propellant rocket engine firing rearward, has already been designed.

At the other extreme of flying, the company, which built thousands of rockets for wartime use, today demonstrated a baby rocket which can lift safely the smallest private airplane or glider into the

Tribe Unknown Cave Yields More Bones Of Indians

Tazewell, Va., Nov. 11 (AP).—A second layer of human bones has been found in a recently discovered cavern near here which apparently is a former Indian burial chamber. Dr. Herbert W. Jackson of the Virginia Tech faculty reported today. Also exploring the cave on the weekend was Hugh Stabler of the Washington, D. C., chapter of the Speleological (cave study) Society. The bones were definitely established as those of Indians but have not yet been identified as to tribe. They were found six inches below the layer where approximately 30 skeletons were found last month and Jackson said the two layers definitely indicated two distinct "ages of deposition."

It was only an additional six inches from the second layer to the floor of the cave, Jackson said. The U-shaped grotto is 3 miles from Tazewell and near Fort Winton, a former Indian defense post. It is reached by descending on a rope into a 35-foot vertical passage. There was no pottery, which Jackson explained makes difficult the task of tribal identification. He said, however, he saw "nothing to indicate the remains are not of a relatively recent tribe."

Jackson expressed the belief there are "lots of remains and relics still to be unearthed in and near the cave. He said the Tech speleological chapter plans next year to excavate trenches at the site to determine how extensive the layers are.

New Train To Cut Time To Richmond

A new $500,000 streamliner which will cut Washington-Richmond running time 15 minutes will be put into service next Sunday by the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad.

Railroad representatives and members of the press made an inspection tour of the five-car train—"The Old Dominion"—yesterday at Union Station. Tour was conducted by the R. F. & P. and the American Car & Foundry Co., builder of the streamliner.

"The 'Old Dominion,' decked out in 'Confederate gray' paint striped with blue and gold, will carry 300-odd passengers on a daily, round-trip schedule.

The cars, constructed of special high-strength steel, are divided into smoking and nonsmoking compartments by glass partitions, and are air-conditioned. Other points include adjustable individual seats, and a parlor-cafe car containing parlor, lounge and dining room sections. All cars have tight-locking couplers and roller bearings to insure riding smoothness.

Under construction for the past year and a half at St. Charles, Mo., the train was delivered last Friday.

"Several railroads of this area have streamliners on order, according to an American Car and Foundry official.

Life Income Preferred by Beneficiaries

Most World War II widows prefer a lifetime income from their husbands' insurance policies rather than three years of considerably larger payments.

This was indicated yesterday in the results of a survey made by the Veterans' Administration's Richmond branch office. The study covered National Service Life Insurance accounts for the District of Columbia, Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and West Virginia.

Unless a serviceman or veteran had named a specific settlement plan, his widow may choose one, said S. H. Parkins, insurance division chief at VA's Washington regional office.

For example, he explained, the beneficiary of a $10,000 policy might elect to receive $289.90 a month for three years. If she preferred life income, the monthly payments would depend on her age. At 40, she would get $42.60 a month.

Of the two plans, Parkins said, the lifetime income is chosen by "the vast majority."

Lump-sum settlement is also possible, but it must have been stipulated by the insured.

Parkins reminded World War II veterans whose insurance has lapsed that they may still reinstate.

Initial Progress Accounts Slated At Luncheon Today

"Close to 50 per cent" of the Community Chest's $3,900,000 goal has been collected, early reports of campaign progress indicated yesterday.

Edward H. Foley, Jr., campaign chairman, announced that reports of the nine soliciting groups will be presented at the first general report meeting at a luncheon at 12:15 p. m. today in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, 1615 H st. n.w.

Brig. Gen. Charles T. Lanham, chief of the Troop Information and Education Division, Army Special Staff and native Washingtonian, will be guest speaker.

Similar luncheon meetings will be held daily until the November 25 closing date, except for Saturdays and Sundays, and November 19 and 20, it was announced. In previous years, progress statements were made only twice a week.

Additional time for progress report has been allotted the Government Unit. Its chairman, Undersecretary of Navy John Kenney, will preside during this portion of the program.

The Rev. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of the Church of the Reformation, will give the invocation, followed by a brief musical program by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. glee club.

In the meantime, 20,000 volunteer solicitors throughout the Greater Washington area were busily working to oversubscribe their quotas.

The Arlington (Va.) Community Chest contest for the best reasons why one should subscribe closes at midnight today, it was announced yesterday by Art M. Wagman, spokesman for the Shirlington Business Center and Radio Station WARI, sponsors.

Entries, written on a plain piece of paper, may be left at any store in the Shirlington area or mailed to WARI, Wagman said.

that "a friend is a present that you give yourself," was on hand yesterday to greet those who came "home" for the day.

Among these was Miss Ida Green, also a member of the "originals" who is now a pastor at the Webster Congregational Church in Havre de Grace, Md. Also returning were John and Theta Reachmach, who nearly 15 years ago were known as the "Friendship Romance," when, as staff workers at the house, they had met and wed. Now they have three fine boys, all of whom came to Friendship House yesterday to participate in the homecoming.

Miss Burkin showed her visitors over Friendship House yesterday, remarking that it was the first homecoming since the building had been acquired in 1937. With a twinkle in her eye, she told how one of the boys who comes to Friendship House, when asked to sign up for the homecoming day, had asked:

"Why should I sign up for homecoming—I ain't never been away?"

But there was anxiety in her face when she explained how she felt that, "now, more than at any other time, people must learn to understand each other, and to be friendly with each other."

To foster this aim, Friendship House, an agency of the Community Chest, has activities for all ages, and for people with varied interests. It has a playground with an outdoor basketball court, a fireplace, an auditorium with stage, music studio and practice rooms, art studio and two ceramics rooms, a small gymnasium, seven club-rooms, two kitchenettes, and rooms for different age groups to accommodate the 75 children who use it as a "day home" because their mothers work.

The Day Home fee varies according to the parents' income—from nothing to $10 per week. Approximately a third of Friendship House's budget is carried by these and other persons who use its facilities.

And as long as there is money available, Friendship House will continue to supplement the "homes and the public educational and recreational facilities so that those living in its neighborhood may have a better chance to achieve their best development."

Russian Atom Blast Reported

these recordings coincided with the hour of 10 a. m. at which L'Intransigeant said the explosion took place.

(On a previous occasion L'Intransigeant printed a startling report concerning atomic bombs. On July 7 the paper said a new American bomb had blown a crater 2700 feet deep and 11 miles wide during a test in New Mexico. The United States Commission called that report "nonsense.")

L'Intransigeant's story appeared just five days after Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov in an address on the eve of the thirtieth anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution declared the secret of the atomic bomb had "ceased to exist."

"12 1/2-Pound Bomb"
The story said the Russians set off a 12 1/2-pound bomb at 10 a. m. on June 15 and that the explosion was heard for 20 miles around the proving ground near the Amur River not far from Irkutsk.

It added that small bombs were being made at a new, created city in far Siberia, dubbed "Atomgrad," from radioactive ores mined in Uzbekistan, Karelia, the Ural Mountains, and the region of Lake Bakail, in Siberia.

The dispatch said about 280 Soviet scientists and military men witnessed what was called the first explosion in Soviet history of uranium 235. Among the witnesses, it was said, were Marshals Kliment E. Voroshilov and Ivan C. Bagramian, Andrei A. Zhdanov of the Politburo, who acted as personal representative of Prime Minister Stalin, and Serge Valivov, director of Soviet Nuclear Research Service, known as "Service 126."

The writer declared the test took place after the "momentary disgrace" of Peter Kapitza, who was replaced by Valivov.

by a number of German scientists at "Atomgrad," the dispatch continued, among them Prof. Gustav Hertz, a cyclotron constructor and U-235 authority; Dr. Robert Doepel, Leipzig physicist, and Prof. Ludwig Bevilacqua and Theissen of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute of Berlin.

Other Soviet scientists working on the bomb were listed as Prof. Joffe, Keshizhansky, J. P. Flerov and K. Petzhak.

The story said that although the Russians believed they were about five years behind American scientists, they were working on a "production belt" technique at their nuclear research center.

Official seismograph observers at London said their instruments recorded a disturbance on June 15 at 12:30 a. m., Greenwich mean time, which would be about 7 a. m. at Irkutsk. The observers said the recording was so faint that they could not estimate its direction, distance, intensity or cause. A similar recording was made at the because of illness.

Soviet Certain To Lose Out on Franco Ban

By Robert Brusk

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Soviet bloc attempts to have the United Nations impose economic sanctions against Franco Spain headed for certain defeat tonight before a drumfire of objections that it would create civil war and starvation.

Charles Fahy told the Assembly's Political Committee that the United States opposed the Polish resolution for Security Council sanctions because it invited violence within Spain and misery for its people.

Dr. Hector D. Castro of El Salvador said that Communists were trying to gain control of Spain and that "one very important member of the United Nations" was engaged in a "new form of imperialism."

Delegates today favored some form of restatement of the resolution approved by the General Assembly last December which barred the Franco regime from international activities and asked all nations to withdraw their diplomatic representation from Madrid. Only Argentina has refused to comply.

Most favored also a mild request that the Security Council exercise its responsibilities for maintaining international peace when Franco's actions require it.

The effect of such proposals would be a reproach to Argentina and little more.

Fahy said the United States would support a restatement of last year's resolution and regret at noncompliance.

Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union considers Franco as "the last vestige of the Axis" and it should be exterminated.

The United States and Britain, he asserted, have close business links with Franco and it is "not bad business." Argentina is not lagging behind and numerous loans have been arranged with the assistance of Americans and Britains, he said.

The committee agreed to appoint a group of nations which brought proposals against Spain so that a joint resolution could be approved. Poland and Yugoslavia were also appointed upon their insistence. Other members of the group are Cuba, Guatemala, Mexico, Panama, Uruguay, Belgium, Luxembourg, Netherlands and India.

abstentions. Tallyes in the last three categories could all be lumped together as votes of protest against Reuther, but even so, his majority was almost four to one.

It was not ever thus for the chunky little boss of America's largest and stormiest union. Eighteen months ago, when he was first elected, his margin of triumph was a bare 124 votes. Since then, he has been bitterly opposed and frequently stalemated by an executive board stacked 14 to 8 against him, and by three to six officers against him on almost all major points.

But today he had the strength, the power and the support of huge majorities of delegates, reflecting the sentiment of the union's 900,000 rank-and-filers. He was given a 17-minute ovation and demonstration by cheering and parading delegates when he was nominated. De Vito, enjoying the support of loose and escaped from the car a block distant, at 7th and Morton sts. ne.

The bandits fled with $6 in cash and three of Mrs. Jones' rings valued at $375.

The same bandits shot Paul S. Allen, 47, of Baltimore, an accountant, in the leg when he resisted during a holdup shortly after midnight in the 100 block of E st. ne.

"Give me your pocketbook or I'll shoot you," one of the holdup men threatened Allen.

"Why should I?" challenged Allen.

The bandit sent a slug tearing into Allen's right thigh. Allen threw his billfold, containing about $30, to the bandits as he lay on the ground wounded.

The condition of the Jones was reported fair and that of Allen good yesterday at Casualty Hospital.

Another victim selected by the bandit pair, Charles A. Perkins of 121 12th st. se., was held up in the 100 block of E st. nw., shortly before Allen was shot, but they fled when a crowd of people entered the street from a nearby hotel.

Police also received a report yesterday that 400 pounds of lead tubing, valued at $130, had been stolen from the first floor at 1024 10th st. ne. The report was made by Harry Berenter, a contractor.

M. L. Halloway, manager of Goldenberg's Department Store warehouse, 472 L st. nw., reported that housebreakers gained entrance to the warehouse between October 29 and 30 and stole tricycles and radios valued at $688.33.

Somebody broke into the car of Army Lieut. Arnold Toplow of Bolling Field while it was parked Monday night in the 300 block of 1st st. ne., and stole clothing, a camera, jewelry and a trunk valued at between $100 and $1500. Acie Coles of 723 Euclid st. nw., reported that a vacant house at 1108 T st. nw., where he is doing repair work, was robbed of plaster, saws and electrical equipment worth $28.50.

Another grand larceny case was reported by Alfred Rossi of 2316 1st st. nw. Rossi said that while he was waiting in Union Station at about 4:10 a. m. last Saturday somebody walked off with his bag which contained a clarinet and clothing valued at $300. 13th st. nw., storekeeper at Camp Simms, 15th st. and Alabama ave. se., reported a shed there was entered Sunday of Monday and clothing valued at $27 taken.

Grocery Store Burglarized
Thieves also broke into Chasen's grocery store, 4721 Sheriff rd. ne., between October 21 and 22, according to Jerome J. Chasen, 25, of 408 Quackenbos st. ne., the owner, and removed loot estimated at $136.15, which included $40 in silver.

Police recovered the automobile of Willie L. Burlison at about 1 a. m. yesterday, two hours after it had been stolen from in front of his home at 11 49th st. ne. Police recovered the car in good condition in the 4900 block of E Capitol st. and arrested a 16-year-old juvenile.

A purse-snatching was reported by Mrs. Betty Jackson, 47, of 1830 Wiltberger st. nw., at about 10:30 p. m. Monday. She said a youth of about 18 grabbed her purse containing $2.30 while she was waiting for a bus at 3d st. and Rhode Island ave. nw.

Mrs. Mildred McCormick reported stolen from her home, 1882 Columbia rd. nw., sometime during the past month, two wrist watches and a collar pin valued at $95.

Two persons were robbed Monday night at the Dunbar Hotel, 2015 15th st. nw. Perry L. Major of Detroit, Mich., reported his room entered and $100 in bills taken from his trousers. Julia Roland reported her handbag containing $40 was stolen.

The Eastern Buffet Restaurant, 224 7th st. se., owned by Elwood C. Day of 4608 Addison rd., Kenilworth, Md., was entered during the night and a pin ball machine rifled of about $20 in nickels.

Another stolen auto recovered was that of Robert T. Pierce of Colerain, N. C., who reported his car taken early yesterday from 14th and Corcoran sts. nw. It was recovered a short while later at 15th and Euclid sts. nw., with damaged fenders.

Police later arrested a suspect.

Jerome J. Losty of Escanaba Hall, 9th st. and Independence ave. sw., complained that while he was walking south on 8th st.

nw., in the rear of the Gayety Theater at about 2 a. m. yesterday, he was grabbed by two men who pulled him in an alley and robbed him of $2. Police later arrested two suspects.

For the second time within a week, the Redman & Brown Furniture Store, 1729 14th st. nw., was broken into, this time early Monday. Police arrested Henry June, 28, of 1114 14th st. nw., and charged him with housebreaking and grand larceny. They said all of the loot from the second housebreaking, about $75 worth of radios, had been recovered.

World Food Units Agree On New Setup

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Staff Writer

The long dispute over the future of the 35-nation International Emergency Food Council was ended yesterday with an agreement to let it continue, under another name, as a committee of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

The IEFC was set up in the summer of 1946 to determine what nation gets what part of the world's food supply. It was a successor to the wartime Combined Food Board.

The FAO, a specialized United Nations agency with wider membership, has been trying for months to take over the IEFC, which was originally scheduled to expire on December 31.

Yesterday the IEFC and the Council of the FAO accepted a compromise which presumably satisfies both groups. As soon as a majority of the 35 nations on the IEFC agree, it will be dissolved but replaced at once by an 11-nation "International Emergency Food Committee" of the FAO.

This committee will have the same functions as those of the IEFC's central committee—namely, to recommend the allocation of scarce foods. It will have identical membership and the same experienced officials wherever possible.

Secretary-General Dennis Fitzgerald of the IEFC will be invited to pilot the new committee.

Its members will be Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, Egypt, France, India, the Netherlands, Norway, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The FAO Council, with Viscount Bruce of Australia presiding, ended its week-long Washington session yesterday by adopting a report that noted "with satisfaction" the voluntary grain-saving effort in the United States.

Otherwise the report contained not a word about the enormous cooperative food-growing program approved by the 16 European nations that met at Paris last summer, or about the European relief and recovery program of the United States.

Since the FAO is a United Nations agency, it apparently felt it could take no official notice of the 16-nation conference or of the Marshall Plan, which are being developed outside the United Nations.

In view of doubtful winter wheat prospects in the Northern Hemisphere, the FAO report recommended the greatest possible seeding of cereals, including rice, in all countries for the next harvest.

It also decided to ask its member governments to give "special and immediate consideration" to a program of inspection and control to prevent insect pests and to control from destroying food supplies.

"The Council is convinced," the report said, "that significant additional quantities of food could be made available for human use if infestation of foodstuffs could be more adequately controlled."

For the longer-term period, the Council urged all countries to start national programs for increased food production. To push this work it set up a committee on production and distribution which would gather and analyze information and offer technical help to whatever countries want it.

Paris Reds Stage Rally

Paris, Nov. 11 (AP)—Thousands of Communists massed around the Tomb of France's Unknown Soldier today in an effort to turn Europe's largest celebration of the First World War Armistice into a show of political strength.

Red banners, clenched fists and shouted demands for the resignation of Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier gave Parisians a novel spectacle.

Police broke up dozens of street scuffles along the line of march. The Communists put on their demonstration after President Vincent Auriol of France placed a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's Tomb under the Arc de Triomphe.

A small American ceremony was held at the Church of Notre Dame des Victoires.

Dollars are as different as the people who have them

Dollars can do much, or they can do little. They can be lazy, or hard-working. Useful, or well nigh useless. For dollars take on the character of those who have them.

The spendthrift's money is soon gone, leaving little of value behind. But the dollars of the thrifty can be put to work—and they then become useful not only to those who earned them but to all our people.

Why is America wealthy?

Because Americans are productive. Because, generation after generation, our people have produced more than they have consumed—and have plowed the surplus back into new factories, stores and farms; into improved methods, finer equipment and skillful labor; all resulting in the production of still more goods and better goods for everyone.

This upward march in our standard of living is sparked, every time, by those who put their dollars to work through investment.

It is up to us all to see to it that our government policies are so shaped that they do not hinder or penalize the invested dollar... for the invested dollar is the bedrock on which all progress and prosperity is grounded.

Scientific, Professional HAIR TREATMENTS

—do you want these facts about them?

R. W. FLASTERER, Trichologist

METHODS?

Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments are locally applied and consist of everything that has been proven beneficial in the treatment of hair and scalp problems. Cleansing and germicidal agents electrotherapy, including Ultra Violet ray; physical and mechanical massage. The very methods used and recommended by foremost authorities. Each treatment takes 25 to 15 minutes and leaves your scalp feeling brisk, clean and alive.

RESULTS?

Each client accepted for treatment sees visible results within 5 treatments. New, replacement hairs are visible within 10 treatments. Thicker, healthier hair—stronger hair is evident within a few months. Dandruff, too dry or oily hair, and other annoying scalp conditions respond immediately to Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments. No one is ever accepted if results are not certain.

COST?

Any man or woman can afford Hair & Scalp Clinic treatments. Fees are reasonable and vary slightly with each case, but can be paid as treatments are taken. The average cost to put your scalp in healthy condition, save and thicken your hair and overcome your scalp problems is $110.00. (Average of 2,000 cases.) Based on the average life span, this is less than 25c per month to save your hair!

WHERE?

Hair & Scalp Clinic specialists are outstanding because of their past record of achievement. They administer the most effective, fastest acting methods, developed in their own laboratories. Professional, business and theatrical people—people in all walks of life—take these treatments and praise the results. And—fees lower than most other types of treatment.

HOW?

If you are worried about your hair—have the symptoms of approaching baldness—don't delay. Come in today for a FREE PRIVATE CONSULTATION. Phone, if you wish, for an appointment, but don't put off giving your hair a chance. Let us prove to you that you need not accept baldness and weak, unhealthy hair. If we accept your case—you'll get results!

U. S. May Lack Enough Wheat moisture deficiency with the exception of one in history.

Since this writer left Oklahoma two days ago, the Oklahoma City Times reported its survey in northwestern Oklahoma to show prospects for next year's wheat ranging from nothing to half a crop.

The three-month period just ending here has been the driest except 1929 in 60 years of crop reporting.

All observers agree that the present plan to export 500 million bushels of wheat by June 30 is "extremely dangerous to our domestic economy."

One Government official who can't be quoted, declared that if the Administration's goal of 500 million bushels is fulfilled only a miracle can save the country from an extreme grain shortage later next year.

That miracle would be a bumper crop of corn and other grains—crop equalling the 1946 yield of wheat, yield unparalleled in American history.

This year the total wheat crop was 1400 million bushels, of which 90 million bushels was winter wheat. Kansas was the largest producer. Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas produced about 550 million bushels of that crop.

Money Plan Not Enough
It is safe to predict that next year's crop of winter wheat in these States will be less than half this year's. If we end next year with virtually no carry-over, as we did this year, then the wheat supply will be little more than will be needed here at home.

If there should be any decline in spring and other wheats, which also were abundant this year, it is easy to see that America may end up without enough for itself, let alone the amounts contemplated in the European reconstruction program and other relief plans.

As Governor Carlson put it today:

"No matter how much money Congress votes for foreign aid, that doesn't grow wheat and you can't feed greenbacks."

It isn't that Kansas doesn't want to raise the wheat for world needs. They must, because of the profits in it, but mainly they want to keep others from hunger.

Kansas Remembers 1888
"Kansas remembers 1888, when the good people of Ohio and Massachusetts and other Eastern States sent out barrels of food and clothing to us. We're generous with our bounty. The Friendship Train is demonstrating that. A great many carloads of wheat already have been donated for foreign relief."

Carlson read off a list of contributions by Kansas communities for relief abroad. The Mennonites in two counties, he said, remembering the years of hunger and persecution their people suffered abroad, have contributed more than 30 carloads. At Larned there are several carloads gathered for shipment. His list contained a dozen similar reports.

Probably 25 per cent of the acreage planned for wheat this year will not be planted. Probably three million acres out of the 11 to 15 million acres of wheatland in the State may be fallowed—plowed up and kept clean, a measure to retain all possible moisture during the year for a crop the following year. Many others may turn to corn and barley to make up for the lack of wheat. But wheat is the crop that grows best in Kansas soil.

Carlson laughs when he speaks of himself as pessimistic.

"Dean L. E. Call, dean emeritus

Peasant Leader Found Guilty

JULIU MANIU
Sentenced to "solitary" of the State College of Agriculture," he says, "calls me optimistic when I predict a crop of only 90 million bushels compared with this year's 300 million."

Both Carlson and Collins say a crop slump is not a surprise. Both point out that "we had seven lean years and then seven fat years. People expect not only one but several bad years."

Around the fringes of the wheat belt there is better news. The fringe in Oklahoma and Kansas has had rain. This is fortunate because many, attracted by high prices have sown wheat in lands usually growing other crops, such as cotton and oil grains.

Carlson sees a danger in the Administration's drive for lower prices for grain. If they drive wheat down it will mean that the farmers will feed more. Such action will defeat its own purpose, he asserts.

Margins Increase Protected

Throughout the wheat belt, farmers complain of the Government action in raising margins in the grain market. That action is causing some to hold wheat that otherwise would be marketed.

One farmer today declared that he had five carloads of wheat he had planned to sell and then protect himself by buying March or May futures. But the cost of the futures market is prohibitive, he says.

The same high margins interfere with immediate grain deliveries by elevators. Many store more grain, usually, than they have storage space. They do that by selling some they are holding for farmers, protecting the sale by buying contracts for future delivery. Although these transactions are actually hedging operations, they are not so considered by grain brokers, who demand the higher margins asked for speculative dealings.

Maniu Guilty, Gets Life Term

tunes and sentenced to "civil degradation."

The two men who received life sentences at hard labor in absentia were Alexander Cretzeanu and Grigore Niculescu-Buzesti.

Constantine Visolanu got 15 and Grigore Gafencu 20 years at hard labor in absentia. Niculescu-Buzesti and Visolanu arrived in New York from Europe two days after the trial began. In addition, all four were sentenced to civil degradation.

Others sentenced were:

Victor Radulescu-Pogoneanu, former counselor in the Romanian foreign ministry, 25 years solitary confinement and five years civil degradation; Camil Demetrescu, former foreign ministry legation secretary, 15 years solitary confinement; Ilie Lazar, 12 years confinement.

Vasile Serdici, press chief for the National Peasant Party, 10 years solitary confinement; Radu Niculescu-Buzesti, brother of Grigore, 10 years solitary confinement; Col. Stefan Stoica, eight years solitary confinement; Nicolai Carandino, six years solitary confinement; Emil Oprisanu, former secretary to the Romanian peace delegation in Paris, five years confinement.

Florin Roiu, former secretary in the Romanian Foreign Ministry, five years confinement; Emil Lazar, former chief clerk in the Foreign Ministry, two years confinement; Baron Ion de Moscovitz-Styrea, who was secretary to King Mihai until November, 1944, two years solitary confinement; Lieut. Col. Dumitru Stancu, one year's confinement.

Tax Gains Partly Offset Aid

A tax windfall resulting from booming business is showing promise of balancing off part of this year's added costs of aid to Europe.

Some Government analysts said yesterday receipts for the current fiscal year ending next June 30 may top the present budget estimate of $41,700,000,000 by two billion dollars if nothing happens to check the revenue flow.

Last year's total was $43,200,000,000. Secretary of State Marshall has put at $2,607,000,000 the cost of this country's stopgap and long-range assistance programs between now and the end of the fiscal year.

The Government analysts said they see little or no threat on the business horizon to continued high tax revenues, but they added that any tax-cutting measure could upset their new calculations.

Revenue collections for the first third of this fiscal year—the slackest season of the tax collection calendar—belled Budget Bureau predictions by running 200 million dollars ahead, instead of behind, the same period of last year.

They totaled $12,195,662,555 for the July 1-October 31 period. Individual income taxes withheld from pay checks brought in $3,319,417,114, nearly 500 million dollars above the comparable period of 1946.

Half Million Men, Women and Children Of Shihkiachwang Aid Fight on Reds

Nanking, Nov. 11 (P).—Half a million men, women and children joined Shihkiachwang's defense corps today as the Communists 100,000 - soldier offensive penetrated the city's outer defense rings.

The battle for Shihkiachwang, strategic rail junction 172 miles southwest of Peiping, centered to-night at Shihmen station, reported the Hsin Min Pao in a dispatch from Peiping.

Other Peiping dispatches said the government troops fell back to their second of three defense lines.

Gen. Liu Ying, the defense commander, radioed Peiping his troops "would die to the very last man."

Government sources in Nanking boosted estimates of Communist casualties, inflicted chiefly by strafing planes, to more than 20,000—double yesterday's report.

The official Central News Agency conceded the loss of Chengting, 10 miles north of Shihkiachwang.

The Shihkiachwang situation was so critical that military observers in Peiping said the next 48 hours might decide its fate.

Poland Suggests U. S. Means to Dominate UNESCO

Mexico City, Nov. 11 (U.P.).—Poland charged today that a great power—undoubtedly the United States—was attempting to dominate the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization for political ends.

Stephen Wierbowski, chief Polish delegate to UNESCO, charged that a representative of a "great country" had "almost" approved use of the atomic bomb against one member of the United Nations. He refused to specify to whom he was referring.

A Czechoslovak speaker also attacked the United States in the plenary session. Both condemned "warmongering" in terms similar to those employed by Soviet delegates of the people, it may be Poland charged today that a great power—undoubtedly the United States—was attempting to dominate the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization for political ends.

"The Polish delegation believes that failure to alter this state of affairs may undermine the authority of UNESCO. Against the will and interests of the vast said."

Soviet Insists Only Big Four Draft Treaty

London, Nov. 11 (P).—The Soviet Union refused to budge today from its position that only the Big Four draft the German peace treaty.

The Deputy Foreign Ministers, in their fourth conference, concurred on only one proposal—to begin consideration tomorrow of the agenda of the November 25 meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Smirnov was unyielding in his demand that the treaty be written by the Soviet Union, France, Britain and the United States alone. The United States wants the treaty-writing committees to consist of the Big Four and a "convenient number" of allied states.

Smirnov objected to what he said was an American accusation that Russia was denying countries who fought Germany the right to participate. He said those who battled fascism will be heard in the final peace conference.

France Decorates Beardall, Burke At Annapolis

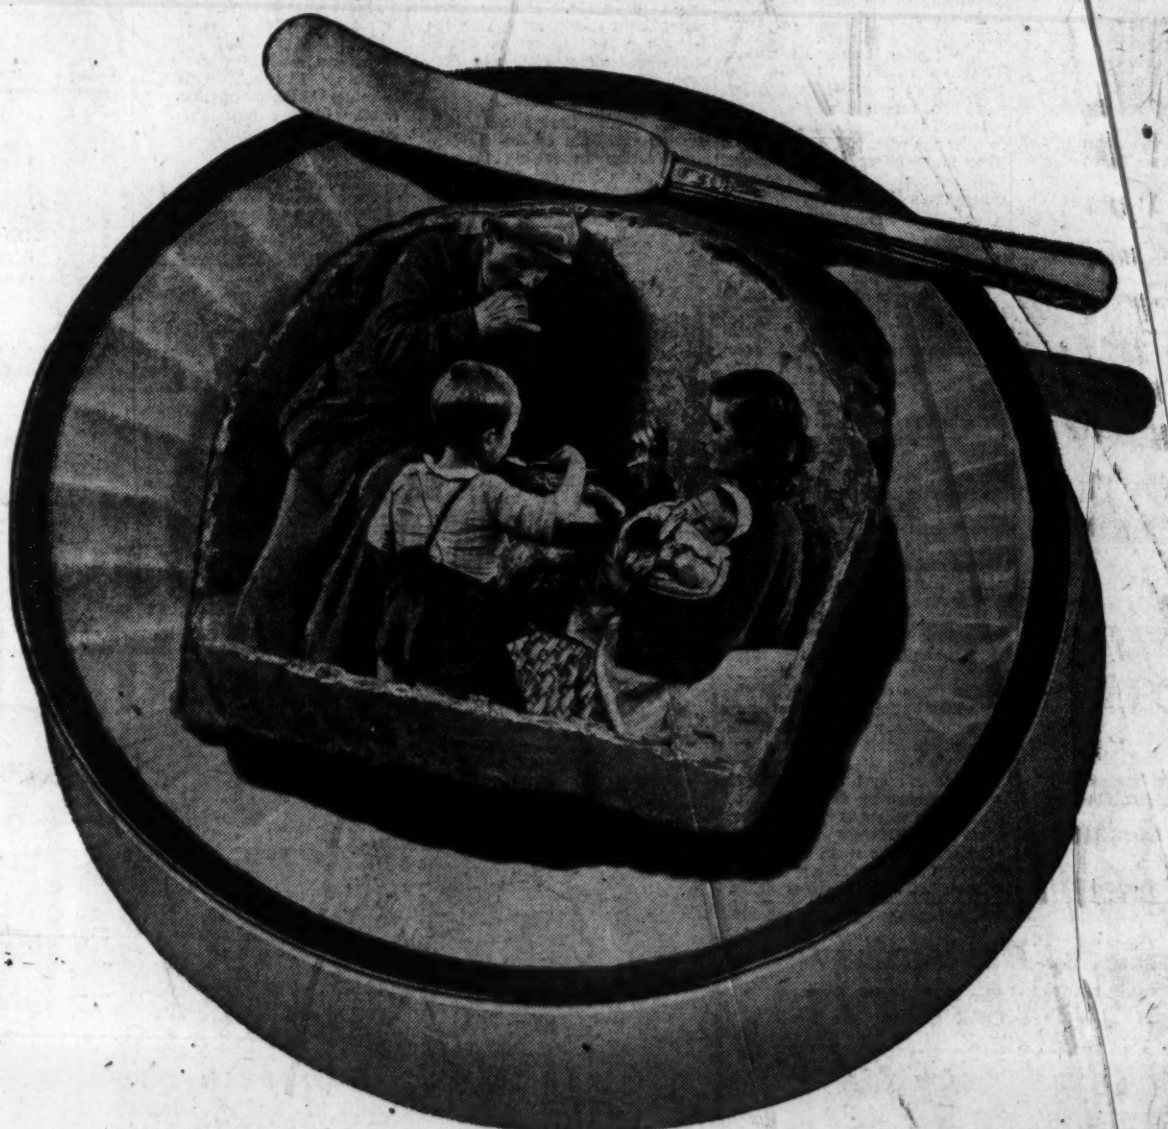

Rear Admiral John R. Beardall (retired) of Berryville, Va., and Comdr. C. Russell Burke of Wainscott, L. I., were awarded the rank of chevalier in the national order of the French Legion of Honor yesterday.

The decorations were conferred on the two navy officers at a ceremony aboard the French cruiser Georges Leygues, anchored in Annapolis Roads.

Admiral Beardall, a former Naval Academy superintendent, was rewarded for his service as commander of the Panama sea frontier in 1945. Commander Burke, now public information officer at the academy, was honored for "the important part he played in the rearming of the French navy."

Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; Mrs. Beardall, Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, Jr., Academy superintendent, and Mrs. Holloway joined French and United States officers on the cruiser for the ceremony.

STASSEN TAKES HIS STAND

Harold E. Stassen is unique among political candidates for his candid commitments on controversial issues. In the latest issue of Look Magazine, this seeker of the Republican nomination speaks his mind on the vital problems of today—problems which directly affect you. In Look's review of Stassen's new book, Where I Stand, you'll find his views on:

TAXES "On the whole it is a good law. It is not anti-labor," says Stassen. "But it goes too far in three respects." Then this most unconventional candidate tells exactly what parts should be amended—and he tells how. TAXES "Our income taxes are too high for times of peace... Not more than 50% of a person's income should be taken from him." And then Governor Stassen makes two additional tax proposals which will be hotly debated in the months ahead.

HOUSING Everybody favors better housing, but Stassen offers a specific program, at a specific cost—tells how and where the homes should be built, then sold or rented. Read this feature in LOOK—on your newsstand now.

Belasco Theater

If Washington is to have a second theater presenting legitimate plays at any time in the near future, the site of it must be the old Belasco facing Lafayette Park. No other existing structure is suitable, and no new theater can possibly be built for some time to come. But if the Belasco is to be redeemed and utilized for the presentation of plays, then the Federal Government, which now owns it, must lend a helping hand. The Commissioner of Public Buildings, W. B. Reynolds, under whose jurisdiction the Belasco comes, indicated in his testimony last July before the Bender Subcommittee that he would do all he could to promote use of the building for theatrical purposes. "The reason I have been sympathetic with the proposal to use this building as a theater," he said, is that "first, it would be of great help to the people of the City of Washington, because they have a shortage of downtown theaters; and, secondly, I cannot see how it is possible to consider the construction of a building on that location, aside of five years." Mr. Reynolds had reference to construction of a new Treasury Department building on the site, and he has subsequently declared that it will be a minimum of 10 years before that project can be undertaken.

We congratulated Mr. Reynolds on these sentiments at the time he uttered them. And we think it indubitable that the Belasco can be utilized far more efficiently and economically for theatrical than for Treasury purposes. But neither Mr. Reynolds nor his agency has demonstrated much interest in any of the concrete proposals that have been made to move the Treasury to other quarters and rent and recondition the Belasco as a theater. Indeed, in response to one specific offer, a PBA official replied that it is "the opinion of this office that the building should not be made available for other than its present utilization." This is, of course, a position directly contrary to that taken by Mr. Reynolds before the Bender Subcommittee.

The PBA itself, in our opinion, ought to take the initiative in finding substitute space for the Treasury activities now carried on in the Belasco building. And for the sake of rendering a service to the community, Treasury ought to vacate that building even at the cost of some inconvenience. Then, we think, PBA should make known the conditions under which it will consent to lease the Belasco and invite rental offers from responsible theatrical producers. Among the conditions which ought to be specified, manifestly, is that the theater be operated in the interests of everybody in the Nation's Capital. Washington's need for another theater is quite urgent enough to warrant prompt and generous governmental action.

Royalty

To the many Americans whose forebears were steeped in the tradition of Queen Victoria and her "dear Albert" the wedding of Princess Elizabeth will bring a fresh reminder of a changed world, and especially of the changed roles of royalty. Elizabeth, who is scheduled to be England's next reigning Queen after Victoria, is said to resemble her great-great-grandmother in her strong will, her certainty of position, her practical sense, and her feeling of public responsibility. Now at the age of 21, like Victoria, she is taking a consort. But her relatively austere wedding—as royal weddings go—will take place in an England fighting for its economic life, one vastly different from the proud nation that on February 10, 1840, Victoria's wedding date, was mistress of the seas, dominant industrially, and expanding, instead of contracting, its colonial empire. Nor can Elizabeth look forward to being the Queen of Ireland, or the Empress of India, or to reprimanding Prime Ministers and attempting reversals of their policies.

Yet Elizabeth and Philip will marry with all the trappings of royal pageantry. To be sure, there will be but 100 guests at a simple wedding breakfast, and the peers will wear morning dress instead of their ermine-trimmed state robes. Nevertheless, the wedding party will parade in coaches surrounded by cavalry guards and a sovereign escort with drawn swords, the bride riding with her father in an open landau drawn by Windsor grays with burnished hoofs, postillions and footmen walking alongside, and the procession will be cheered by a starry-eyed populace, some members of which will have paid thousands of dollars for window seats. To some Americans this may seem an incredible spectacle in a Socialist England, and in a world torn by conflict over opposing concepts of "democracy." The fact remains that wedding, all have a way of leaning heavily on the ceremonial buttresses of yesterday, and that of a royal princess is no exception.

Germany's Neighbors

That the fear of a resurgent militarism in Germany is very much alive in the countries bordering on Germany is one of the impressions brought back by the traveling legislators. Some of them asked Mr. Marshall yesterday for his comment. But the Secretary of State appears to have dismissed the fear as the product of Soviet propaganda. To be sure, the Communists have been playing up the bogey of a Germany helped back to power by American finance, but they did not create the bogey. It is our feeling, no less than that of the legislators, that the fear is authentic. Three quarters of a century of experience with the furor Teutonicus lies imbedded in the neighbors' memory. And the fear is augmented by knowledge of Teutonic vitality. Appreciation of this situation requires sympathetic recognition by the Administration—in the form of assurances that the rebuilding of Germany into a condition which would threaten Germany's neighbors has no place in American policy. After all, the people of America are not forgetful of the blood they have themselves shed against Kaiserism and Nazism.

At the same time the French, who are most sensitive about a risen Germany, must realize that a revival of Europe requires a revival of Germany. The object of ERP is continental, not national. Mr. Marshall, as was said of Marshal Lyautey, is "a technician of the general idea," and his aim is to reestablish a "working economy" across national borders—an economy in which Germany must inevitably figure. There might not have been any need of any Marshall Plan today if Germany had been put to work in the employment of its people and resources for the benefit of all Europe. No fact is so plain and irreducible on the map of Europe. It follows that to keep Germany down is to keep Europe down. Such a depression of Germany would insert a continuing threat to peace as well as chaos in the very heart of Europe. What is equally sure is that the outlay by American taxpayers in behalf of our German wars would be enormous. In maintaining Germany as a slum the American taxpayer last year had to find 300 million dollars. The cost this year will be even more than that. At any rate, Secretary Marshall told the joint committees on Monday that additional requirements in western Europe would cost 300 million dollars. For these reasons the American policy is now to "rebuild a self-supporting state devoted to peaceful purposes, integrated into the economy of Europe."

Integrated into the economy of Europe. That does not mean either that we want to see Germany on a higher living standard than her neighbors or that we want to put Germany in a position of potential military strength. Far from it. It means that we want to see all Europe increase its living standards. This can only come by the development of unity of economic policy. Mr. William L. Clayton pressed the European conferees on the Marshall Plan in Paris to work toward this goal. Under his encouragement they set up a committee to study the possibility of creating a continental steel industry. Another avenue of approach, mentioned by the Harriman Committee, is a continental convention on truck transport across international borders. In unity there is not only strength, but also peace and prosperity. Mr. Clayton's greatest achievement in Paris was to persuade the nations of Europe to maintain the organization they had created for the purpose of preparing a draft for ERP. It ought to be regarded as the germ for a united Europe.

This "mixing up together" is the way to bury the fear of a risen Germany. Another way for the French is to make the present Bizonia of the British and American zones in Germany into Trizonia. Granted that the French were not parties to the Potsdam agreement, the fact remains they would never have had a zone at all but for British-American insistence over Soviet objections. A further source of French security would lie in acceptance of the 40-year treaty governing German militarism that America already has offered. There are, as Mr. Marshall said yesterday, differences of opinion on Germany which still have to be ironed out with Germany's neighbors. We ought to lose no time in coming to agreement. A "working economy" in Europe, for instance, requires the determination of the political future of the Ruhr and the restoration of the ports of the Low Countries as outlets for the trade of Germany.

Reuther's Rightists

Walter Reuther's stature as a labor leader has been enhanced by his year-long struggle with an executive board dominated by men with Communist support. His reelection as president of the United Auto Workers Tuesday was a tribute to his uncompromising stand. It was evidence, moreover, of the straight thinking of the delegates attending the UAW convention in Atlantic City. The issues as between the right and the left in the UAW have become much clearer since the tumultuous meeting in which Mr. Reuther was installed a year ago.

Mr. Reuther's supporters are rightists in the sense that they oppose the totalitarian left. For instance, they have not relaxed their fight against the Taft-Hartley law, but they believe in using legal means in fighting it. Hence their overwhelming decision to have their officers comply with the law by signing non-Communist affidavits. The leftist line has been to refuse to sign the affidavits and to ignore the National Labor Relations Board completely. Obviously this argument was not convincing even as a practical matter, for the very good reason that the UAW has 200 cases pending before the NLRB which, if the leftist approach had been followed, would have been jettisoned.

Undoubtedly the Reuther supporters gained ammunition from the transparent attempt of the anti-Reutherites to tag Reuther as a man who is playing political footie with Senator Taft. We decided this Communist ruse at the time it was launched, and it has been generally discredited. Furthermore, delegates could hardly avoid being impressed by the warm endorsement of Mr. Reuther by CIO President Philip Murray, whose own vision and courage on the Communist issue have improved recently. Although Mr. Murray did not identify the issue per se, the only words he could find for Mr. Reuther's former opponent, UAW Vice President R. J. Thomas, were "not a bad guy" who "makes his mistakes." He referred to Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes as "a man of integrity" with "certain outstanding qualifications," but he neglected entirely, possibly inadvertently, to mention the other member of the anti-Reuther triumvirate, Vice President Richard T. Leonard. This faint praise left no doubt as to where Mr. Murray's sympathies lay.

While no one, to our knowledge, has adduced evidence that Messrs. Thomas, Addes and Leonard are themselves Communists, the fact remains that they have used and welcomed Communist support. The Reuther victory shows an altogether healthy recognition by UAW members that the Communists and their dupes must be numbered in the forefront of the enemies whose purpose is destruction of trade unionism.

Bomb "Secret"

It is testimony to American good sense that there has been no complicity in this country over Mr. Molotov's "disclosure" that Russia has the atom bomb "secret." The consensus of most—though not all—American authorities seems to be that the implication that the Soviet has the bomb as well as the "secret" has no basis in fact and that it is intended primarily to keep the Russians crisis-minded. Yet the statement was also intended to frighten Americans, as undoubtedly are the reports of the actual detonation of a Soviet atom bomb and the establishment of a Siberian factory city known as "Atomgrad." This opinion is buttressed by the Daily Worker's current screams about the "terrible campaign of deception" by the American Government in doubting the Soviet claim. When the Daily Worker cries "deception," it is usually covering its own tracks.

Among those who think Mr. Molotov is bluffing is Dr. Harold C. Urey, one of the top-Rank American scientists who perfected the bomb. He says, however, "we'd have to be mind readers to know what Molotov means." The fact is, of course, that there never has been any atomic bomb "secret" as such. The basic theory of atomic fission, as Dr. Urey has taken pains to point out, has long been known to scientists the world over; and it is given to laymen in the Smyth report. Thus, to say that Russia possesses the "secret" is to be meaningless.

Most scientists have believed from the beginning that the only real "secret" is know-how. Translation of the generally known facts about the atom into a usable weapon required years of research by the ablest American and foreign scientists, plus enormous plans and huge capital outlays, plus exploration of innumerable blind alleys. This in a Nation where mechanical genius is taken as a byword. It is here that Russia is weakest. Scores of carloads of looted machinery rusting on sidings give eloquent proof that Russia's eyes for industry are far bigger than her capacity to utilize it. Hundreds of examples could be cited to show that in their present stage of development the Russians simply are not mechanically minded. Certainly there is no reason to believe that the Soviet Union, in her race for the bomb, can avoid any of the tribulations that faced American scientists and engineers. Moreover, she does not have the carriers to get bombs to this country and is not likely to acquire those carriers for some time.

Merely because the Russians may not have the ability to make bombs now does not mean, of course, that they will not eventually have it. Let us not forget that the police powers they use as a state puts them in a position of transferring all their resources into the attainment of a single object. Thus to assume that we have a permanent monopoly or know-how would be just as foolish as to place our faith in a non-existent "secret." That means that we must keep our lead in research. It is a sad but necessary realization that unless and until the Soviet Union agrees to world control, exploration of the military potential of atomic energy must continue unabated.

BASKET OF GRAPES

More than its cargo of blue Concord this carrier holds
In smoldering blue midnight of sapphire and frosted bloom,
Half-musky incense that speaks the autumn of the year,
Yet breathing a summer's fragrance in this silent room.
But more than a summer, more than this season past
Is captured in these blue-black clusters and transfixed here:
It is all remembered summers rich with summer song
And sweet with the poignance of a fleeting year and year.
Or a particular summer when warm golden green sunlight fell Through decked leaves in a forgotten nook
now long lost,
When childish laughter rippled at some unremembered joke,
Long, long before the laughter and the leaves were touched by frost.

"You'd Be Surprised How Things Are Improving"

Letters To The Editor

"Confusion Of Rights"

Your November 1 editorial questions my logic in refusing to comply with the loyalty check in view of my willingness to subject my record to public scrutiny.

May I remind you that, under the procedures which you so ably condemn, the most innocuous of records might be held adversive by the Attorney General and the loyalty boards. I'd much prefer to retire to the quiet of Amherst rather than to acknowledge the validity of such kangaroo courts. Had I, in dissenting, failed to tell the press all concerning the organizations to which I belong, I would justifiably have been accused of concealment.

My own case is of no great significance. What is significant is that two million Government employees are subject to this inquiry. To them, failure to comply means a livelihood. Little wonder that they prefer to take their chances on the purge. When an Administration is so inept as to extend its quest for Reds to invited consultants, it deserves the sharp reply it received. I had not been aware that our Constitution permitted political coloration to be a barrier to Federal employment. Perhaps you are better informed. In any event, should hope that you would, to be consistent, urge our distinguished delegate to UNISCO to rephrase the United States proposal for Article 28 to tie international Bill of Rights by adding the italicized words to her present version: "Everyone shall have equal opportunity to engage in public employment in the state of which he is a citizen, provided that he has been 'properly and judiciously screened' (your phrase) to prove his anti-Communist bias." This formulation would receive applause from Argentina, if not from those who cherish the Bill of Rights. COLSTON E. WARNE, Amherst, Mass.

"Transit Squeeze"

Your editorial in The Washington Post of November 3 appears to approve a fare, raise for Capital Transit sight unseen and based solely on C.T.C.'s claims of increased costs. You further add that municipal ownership may be worse than the present setup.

I am wondering if The Washington Post couldn't take the trouble to send one of its reporters to Toronto, Canada, to check up on public ownership of its transportation system, and report on it to your readers. They'll learn that the Toronto Transportation Commission has been operating the city's transportation system, almost identical with ours, and serving a population as large as ours, without "feeder lines" since 1920; that the fare has been the same for the past 27 years; that instead of being constantly in the red, the T.T.C. shows a huge supply of profit and Toronto's citizens are debating whether to use that surplus to build a subway.

They will learn that some think instead of a subway the T.T.C. should lower fares. At present (and since 1920) fares are four tickets for 25 cents. Toronto's transportation personnel belong to a union strong enough to force the T.T.C. to continue in service hundreds of two-man cars ("feederbeds," we call it here). Its members are well paid. The T.T.C. employs young women as ticket vendors, whose sole duty appears to be to be stationed (in uniform) in downtown streets, selling tickets and answering questions on how to reach a certain street. The T.T.C. is constantly improving its service and maintaining repair crews for work at night (at premium pay) so as not to disturb rush-hour service.

Yet in spite of all that Toronto makes a profit on its four-for-25 cents fare, and its citizens argue whether to make fares six for 25 cents or build a subway. RHODA C. SEDLOW, Washington.

Auchincloss Report

The Auchincloss report recommending a plan for local self-government in the Nation's Capital is in most respects admirable. But one serious flaw in the proposed system is observable. That is the election of all councilmen on a single blanket ballot—city-wide plurality to prevail. This is the sort of system which would tend to insure that only one main line of thought or civic theory would be effectively represented in the council.

In case of any city government where the number of persons to be elected is "several but not many," the most practical plan for making the popular will effective is the Hare system of proportional representation. When that system was adopted for the commission of Ashtabula, Ohio, a magazine writer explained its practical workings in popular terms like this: "A given ballot says, in effect, 'My first choice is Jones. But in case he cannot be elected—also in case he does not need my vote, because already elected by others—then my ballot shall be transferred to Jenkins, my second choice.' And so on for third or later choices."

Of course the ballot does not contain that precise language. But if Brown, for example, an outstanding popular candidate, receives twice as many first choice ballots as the natural quota for one seat in the council, then each of those first choices is counted as a one-half vote for Brown, while the other half votes from the same citizens are distributed as half votes for Smith, Peterson, Green, and so on, according to respective second choices recorded on the ballots. ERNEST G. DODGE, Washington.

"Speaking Of Americanism"

Having recently returned from Paris where I was the American Director of the French office of the International Rescue and Relief Committee, I had the opportunity to observe with considerable alarm the disastrous effects of Communist penetration there, aided in large measure by the same kind of soft-headedness as well as soft-heartedness expressed in your November 4 editorial on the Thomas Committee.

The editorial is typical of a certain kind of liberal opinion which goes all out in its attacks on Vishinsky, Molotov, Stalin et al., but sees no connection between them and the conspiratorial agents in this country. This type of non-Communist, but not anti-Communist liberal, places every obstacle in the path of Government agencies which seek either to expose or remove Communists in important strategic posts. In the light of your consistent pattern of behavior on all these issues, the nature of your present criticism of the Thomas Committee in its Hollywood investigations bears all the earmarks of questioning the urgent necessity of revealing the affiliations of these persons now under the spotlight of exposure.

What punishment would have resulted from the witnesses' admission of Communist affiliations? Every politically sophisticated liberal who knows these individuals who are before Congress for possible contempt knows that they have quite proudly written and spoken about their pro-Soviet sympathies for many years. It is not as if Robert Montgomery, for example, were being falsely publicized as being a Communist because he is raising money to aid Spanish Republican refugees (which he is doing effectively for the IIRC in Hollywood).

You charge the committee with trying "into personal beliefs." As far as I have followed the testimony, there has been no question of dealing with beliefs. The questions asked dealt with affiliation to a party, which elsewhere in your editorial, you describe as "certainly

In Pursuit Of Plumbing

By Malvina Lindsay

Call Of The Cities

WHETHER the average farm home is an Arcadian retreat or a tumbledown shack sparked off hot argument recently in a congressional committee, and it will be an issue in the drawing up of a new legislative farm program. One answer to this has been given by most of the women who left the farm for war work. They have not gone back. Men who left the farm for war work have also in the main failed to return. Since most of these were married it is likely their wives influenced their decisions.

One thing that induced the women to stay in cities and towns was plumbing—and all that it connotes. This is partly evidenced by the fact that the South, where rural housing is at its worst, has had the smallest number of returns. Of rural youth who went into the armed services, about three out of four have gone back to the farm—not all of them to stay. Agricultural experts are dubious as to whether farm machinery can compensate for the loss of good men and women who have left and who are leaving. Certainly the migration of tenderfoot city folk to the farm, while large, has not filled the gap.

THIS IS NOT the only country where it is getting increasingly difficult to keep women down on the farm. Sweden, alarmed by the way its young women are leaving farms for cities, has sent a specialist on farm women's problems to this country to study what has been done in making work of American farm women easier. Great numbers of rural Irish girls have been going to British cities to get household and factory jobs. In many other countries peasant girls are beginning to throw off the family yoke early and set out for the more comfortable and gayer life of cities.

Plumbing, of course, is not the only lure of the city. Regular paychecks in industry appeal to farm girls and women. So do bright lights and companionship. But plumbing is a great inducement in keeping many former farm wives in the city. Even the cramped living conditions of American cities contrast favorably with farm homes that lack electricity and running water. A woman suffers from these inconveniences more than a man because her household work is made harder by their lack. Yet only slightly over half of American farm homes have electricity—compared with 96 per cent of other homes. Only 23 per cent have running water—compared with 95 per cent of city homes. Only one out of five farm homes has bathing equipment (exclusive of the washbasin), but four out of five city homes have a bathroom. One third of farm homes are reported as too dilapidated for repair, and another one third are in need of major repairs.

POPULAR CONCEPTION of the farm home is that of a spanking-white cottage overrun with well-kept rose vines and free from all city dirt, vermin, noise and discord. In the picture, of course, is the old-fashioned oaken bucket, which brings up the water that the happy housewife so lightly draws and carries (an average of 82 yards) to the house.

This vision was rudely dissipated when a report of the Department of Agriculture to a joint Senate-House Agricultural Committee pictured the average farm family living in an old house which brings up the water that the happy housewife so lightly draws and carries (an average of 82 yards) to the house. Two legislators angrily defended their pastoral concept. They labeled the report "deliberate falsehood, downright lies, an unwarranted indictment of the American farmer."

However, the Department of Agriculture is concerned now with getting and keeping capable people on the Nation's farms. It recognizes that on them depends future feeding of Americans according to the standards the war developed and also a time at least, the feeding of much of the rest of the world. It knows that the quality of farm personnel will depend increasingly on what farm homes offer to family life. Roads, schools and community services as well as housing enter into this picture. Since war has begun the beginning of civilization have been steadily pioneered toward more stable and comfortable life for their families, they will respond to farm life according to what living benefits it offers.

American farm homes and conveniences are great superior to those in most of the world and in recent years have greatly improved. Yet general living standards here are also higher. The American farm woman is more generally aware of the electric lights and indoor toilets of her urban sisters. Hence, though the farm woman may be less in long-range returns than the city woman, she is likely to want to take her family to where life is more comfortable. And American women have a great deal of say as to where their families live.

Returning The Dead

It seems incredible that any Gold Star Mother should feel insulted by Herblock's cartoon of October 28, "Who Did Ask Me Who Should Get The Trip, Kid." Certainly no finer tribute could have been paid our sons than to bring back in place of their bodies war-orphaned European children to share the American way of life which these boys died to defend. Alas, that this wonderful opportunity to create a living memorial to our sons not offered solely when parents were asked to make their choice. Thank you, Mr. Block. GOLD STAR MOTHER, Washington.

Emergency Aid First

THE VAST SCOPE of what we propose to do in Europe is just beginning to be apparent. Reports, statistical tables, estimates are pouring out of overworked and understaffed Government agencies.

In his testimony before the joint Senate and House Foreign Relations Committee, Secretary of State George C. Marshall referred to the "simple suggestion" he made in his Harvard speech of June 5. That "suggestion" was acted upon by 16 European nations, and the report they drew up in Paris is the basis for the Marshall Plan.

Anyone who thought this would be merely a matter of signing a few sizable checks by now is thoroughly disillusioned. The State Department is preparing a volume only slightly smaller than the fat Washington telephone directory which will contain merely the outline of what is officially called the European Recovery Program or ERP.

Two or three additional volumes on the telephone-directory scale will contain supporting tables and statistics. The Harri-man report, analyzing the availability of American resources as measured against European needs, estimated about 100,000 words. The reporter these days collects a library when he goes out on assignment. All he needs is leisure to digest what is rapidly becoming a 5-foot shelf of official volumes on a plan that is still in the preliminary blueprint stage.

IN HIS STATEMENT to the joint congressional committees, Marshall emphasized again the urgent need for interim aid in the coming weeks for France, Italy and Austria. He put the total necessary to stave off hunger and cold at 597 million dollars. This would cover the period up to March 31, when, presumably, Congress will have adopted the long-term recovery program and the drive for reconstruction can begin.

But even in his comparatively brief statement Secretary Marshall suggested some of the hazards and difficulties in the way of administering a recovery program that will affect the lives of more than 200 million people in western Europe. There is the big question of where primary responsibility is to rest.

Marshall understandably puts the stress on the need to keep the control of our foreign policy in the State Department and the Foreign Service. He talks of a single administrator, with broad centralized powers, who would have the rank of ambassador.

This goes contrary to the concept of the House committee headed by Representative Christian Herter of Massachusetts. Their report advocated a corporation with a board of directors to boss the job. The Harri-man committee follows more or less the same line. But the State Department speaks disparagingly of such a board as a debating society that would hopelessly bog down when it came to making decisions.

AMBASSADOR to Britain Lewis Douglas has been summoned home from London, although he was in Washington only two weeks ago. According to one report, he is being sounded out by President Truman for the No. 1 job in the long-term recovery program.

Douglas has many qualifications. He is a successful business man who has maintained a continuing interest in public life. What is more, he could be confirmed by a Republican Congress.

At the time of his appointment as Ambassador to Socialist Britain, it was said by the cynical that this was a little like sending a Baptist preacher as envoy to the Vatican. But Douglas is a different kind of man.

While Douglas may be the type of man on whom the Republican Congress and the Democratic President may finally agree, it is much too early to talk of individuals. Members of Congress who traveled abroad have some very positive ideas on how the program should be administered. They lean strongly toward the idea of a corporation and they will not give up that idea without a struggle.

The immediate task of the coming special session is to approve emergency aid. If that is done quickly, the frail structure of Europe's economy will disintegrate at an ever swifter rate.

It is not expected that Congress at the special session will act on the long-term program. That would be expecting too much in view of the differences which must be ironed out. But inevitably the problems that are a part of that program will come into the debate. It will be a prelude to the great decision that America must take in the coming year.

Lubin Favors Minimum Pay Of 75 Cents

By The Associated Press

Admiral Lubin, former special war assistant to the late President Roosevelt, said yesterday a 75-cent minimum wage will help prevent unfair competition in America.

Lubin told a House Labor Subcommittee considering possible revisions in the wage-hour law that only 10 per cent of workers now covered by the act get less than 75 cents an hour, despite the fact the law's minimum is 40 cents.

"In any case, a healthy position to absorb a 75-cent minimum wage, I do not mean to imply that there will be no individual firms which will be faced with problems. There will be such firms," Lubin said.

But no business, he continued, should be permitted to have an "unfair advantage" in the race for profits under the competitive system by being able to pay lower wages.

He said the 75-cent minimum hourly rate comes to $30 a week and expressed a belief that no American worker can get along on as low as present prices, particularly if he has dependents.

Lubin, for a dozen years chief of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, appeared for the political organization, the Americans for Democratic Action.

He conceded that if living costs go down to any considerable degree, Congress should consider reducing the minimum wage. But only to a point where it would be representative of current living costs.

Earlier, a representative of the National Retail Dry Goods Association told the committee that the minimum wage would be inconsistent with the Administration's program for lower living costs.

Richard D. Edwards, president of the J. C. Bright Co. of Lansford, Pa., also contended in a statement that continuation of overtime pay provisions of the wage-hour law will prevent expanded production.

"If we are to avoid the consequences of still higher prices," Edwards said, "we must find a way to produce more at no higher and probably lower unit costs—an end which is impossible of achievement so long as Federal law sanctions a premium wage for such production."

Martin Hears Lawyers in Contempt Case

By The Associated Press

Attorneys for 10 Hollywood movie figures accused of contempt of Congress pressed a last-ditch fight yesterday to save them from prosecution pending a congressional inquiry on the whole issue.

House Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) took the case under consideration without giving a direct yes or no answer to the lawyers' protest.

He indicated, however, that once the technicalities have been met, he may have no choice but to turn the case over to the district attorney.

Defense attorneys Martin Popper, Washington, and Lester M. Levin, New York, voiced their protests to Speaker Martin in an hour-long hearing behind closed doors.

Popper argued that Martin should decline to certify the contempt citations on the ground that last month's Red-in-Hollywood inquiry by the House Committee on Un-American Activities "violated the constitutional rights of the (defendant) individuals under the First, Ninth and Tenth Amendments."

(These amendments relate to freedom of speech, people's rights and State's rights under the so-called "Bill of Rights.")

A hitch in executing the contempt citations arose over a technicality: The fact that less than a majority of the House Committee's members was present at the October hearings and formal approval of the citations was obtained from absent members by telegraph, telephone or mail.

Under usual procedure, when Congress is not in session, contempt recommendations from a House committee go to the Speaker who turns them over to the United States District Attorney for prosecution.

Committee aides said they expect a majority of the House committee to be in Washington on Friday, ready for Monday's special session. In that event, the committee could take a formal vote Friday if it decided that the telegraphic poll failed to conform with congressional rules.

All ten of the Hollywood defendants, mostly writers and directors, were cited for contempt when they refused to give clear-cut answers whether they were or are members of the Communist Party.

EARLIER, a representative of the National Retail Dry Goods Association told the committee that the minimum wage would be inconsistent with the Administration's program for lower living costs.

Richard D. Edwards, president of the J. C. Bright Co. of Lansford, Pa., also contended in a statement that continuation of overtime pay provisions of the wage-hour law will prevent expanded production.

"If we are to avoid the consequences of still higher prices," Edwards said, "we must find a way to produce more at no higher and probably lower unit costs—an end which is impossible of achievement so long as Federal law sanctions a premium wage for such production."

Weight of Opinion Favors Nov. 11, Aug. 14 Armistice Days

By George Gallup

American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 11.—What should be done about celebrating the Nation's two armistice days, marking the end of the two World Wars?

The average American is in something of a quandary about this. Some people have proposed that both armistices be celebrated on November 11; others that they both be celebrated on August 14, the ending of the second World War; while still others have suggested that the two celebrations remain separate.

This latter idea—that the holidays be kept as separate occasions—seems to have the most appeal to the public. The average American isn't being merely sentimental about it. The plan would give him two holidays off from work instead of one.

Sooner or later the President and the various State Governors will have to decide whether to proclaim August 14 a holiday. The November 11 armistice holiday was proclaimed in 1926 by direction of Congress.

As a guide to the public's wishes in the matter, the Institute quizzed voters from coast to coast on the following:

Do you think the ending of both World Wars I and II should be celebrated on November 11?

(ending of World War I); should they be celebrated on August 14 (ending of World War II), or should the ending of each war be celebrated on its own date?

The vote follows:

Both on November 11.....	22%
Both on August 14.....	7%
Each on own date.....	46%
Immature.....	13%
No opinion.....	12%

While the idea of celebrating each on its own date does not win a majority of the vote, nevertheless the weight of opinion is certainly in that direction.

Holidays are actually determined by State governments. There are no "national" holidays; each State has jurisdiction over the holidays observed. The only national holiday ever proclaimed by Congress was to mark the 100th anniversary of the Constitution.

The President and Congress do, however, designate holidays for the District of Columbia and for all Federal Government employees throughout the Nation. This, of course, has an important influence on individual State decisions regarding observance.

In the case of the August 14 date, if the President were to issue a proclamation making it a holiday for Federal Government workers, the States would probably act in conformance.

VA Will Inspect GI Homes To Prevent Bad Construction

By The United Press

The Veterans Administration, burdened by complaints that new G. I. homes have sagging floors, wet basements and bad heating said yesterday that it would assume direct responsibility for proper construction appraisals based on plans and specifications and a minimum of three inspections as work advances.

Previously, it had been the responsibility of the lender to see that construction came up to original specifications.

VA has been flooded for the past year with complaints that "unscrupulous and inefficient" builders have been erecting crackerbox-like homes with "defects too numerous to mention."

Hereafter, the agency said, appraisals and inspections will be made by VA agents. The appraisal fee must be paid by the builder, lender or sponsor of a project and may not be passed on to the buyer.

Builders, lenders and project sponsors will pay the biggest part of the inspection fees, but a "proportionate share" can be passed on to the veteran.

To do the job, VA said it would augment its staff of architects, contractors and engineers and assign the work to specialists chosen from this group.

AFL Drops Opposition To Factory-Built Houses

Chicago, Nov. 11 (P)—Three AFL unions and several manufacturers of prefabricated houses have signed contracts which a union spokesman said last night would speed home construction.

Daniel Carmell, attorney for the Illinois State Federation of Labor, said that under the agreements, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices (plumbers and pipefitters), and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners would make prefabricated houses at manufacturing plants and erect them for purchasers.

The largest manufacturer in the agreements is the Lustron Corporation of Chicago and Columbus, Ohio, with a capacity of 150 houses a day.

Richard Gray, president of the AFL Building Trades Department, said that in signing the contracts, the unions had abandoned their opposition to prefabricated housing.

Matter Of Fact

Price Control Or No Price Control

PRESIDENT Harry S. Truman must sometimes feel a little like the unhappy apple-sorter whose job drove him insane because he had to make so many decisions. For in this autumn of decision, still another decision—and this one is loaded with political dynamite—is now confronting the worried President. Sometime before next Monday, when the special session of Congress meets, he must decide to risk congressional wrath by asking for a kind of cut-rate OPA or whether to propose much milder medicine and hope for the best.

When the President called the Congress into special session, he spoke firmly of the urgent need for effective measures to head off the threat of uncontrolled inflation. Yet the fact is that neither the President nor his advisers knew then what measures he would propose in his opening message to Congress. And although innumerable conferences have since been held, innumerable memoranda written, they still do not know. With the Monday deadline looming close, the conference-holding and memorandum-writing is now reaching a somewhat feverish crescendo.

Yet as of this writing, nothing like a final decision has been taken.

An area of agreement has been reached. But a larger and more vital area of disagreement still exists. Those chiefly concerned are the White House aides, like Clark Clifford and John Steelman, the members of Dr. Edwin M. Hoover's Council of Economic Advisors, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug, Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman and their advisers and economists.

ALMOST ALL those concerned with the price issue are convinced that the whole intricate paraphernalia of price control on everything from diapers to piccolos, on the old OPA pattern, is dead beyond resurrection. There is also general agreement that allocation and export controls, plus credit controls, are essential. But here the area of agreement ends. For a number of the experts insist that if the job abroad is to be done, and a really disastrous inflation at home is to be avoided, some limited form of price control is urgent. It is argued that if the prices of a few basic commodities—food, especially wheat and meat, and basic industrial products, especially steel—are frozen, the whole economy can be brought in balance.

The lines have not hardened, but the chief opponents of this school of thought are reported

Roxas Party Lags in Manila, Leads in Rural Vote Returns

Manila (Wednesday, Nov. 12 (P). The Nacionalista Party rolled up a surprisingly large lead today in early returns from the Philippines' first off-year election since independence.

Four killings and the disappearance of four election officials were reported, but the balloting was comparatively quiet following President Roxas' election eve appeal for calm. At least 35 persons were killed and unreported numbers were wounded or kidnapped in pre-election campaigning.

Tallies from 160 precincts of greater Manila's 752 gave the Nacionalistas' eight candidates for senator 82,463 votes to 56,052 for those of President Roxas' Liberal Party.

Provincial returns, however, were favoring the dominant Liberal Party candidates in an equally surprising close vote.

A Roxas spokesman reported the Liberals were leading in the provinces, 15,681 to 12,796. Filipinos were electing eight senators—one third of that house's members, as in the United States—for six-year terms; 45 governors and a throng of lesser provincial officials.

Roxas, with 10 of the 16 hold-over senators, could retain a majority of the upper house if only three of his candidates win today.

Gen. Meyers Charges Hughes Lied in Testimony on Alleged Loan Plea thing against Benny Meyers unless I was forced to. That still stands," he said.

Claims "Outlaw" Offer

As for other deals, said Meyers, Hughes had definitely offered him $100,000 last year if he could persuade Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York to lift the ban on the Hughes film, "The Outlaw," banned in New York as being too sexy.

Hughes, only a short time earlier, had sworn that he could say "positively that he had never made any such offer to Meyers."

Meyers said he had told O'Dwyer and License Commissioner Benjamin Fielding about the $100,000 offer at the time—"and they will back me up."

In New York, Fielding and O'Dwyer substantiated Meyers' statement.

Fielding told reporters that Meyers had come to see him last year when Fielding headed the department of license.

"He said that Mr. Hughes had offered him a commission of $100,000 if arrangements could be made to show 'The Outlaw' in New York City in its original shape and he also indicated that the $100,000 would not be solely for himself," Fielding asserted, according to the Associated Press.

Visit to O'Dwyer

O'Dwyer said that Meyers had visited him in El Centro, Calif., where he was vacationing in October, 1946, to intercede on behalf of "The Outlaw."

"He put it on an entirely personal basis," the mayor said. "He said it would mean a lot of money to him. I had the impression he said it would mean $100,000."

Yesterday was not the first time that testimony has entered into the inquiry on Hughes' war contracts about offers made in connection with "The Outlaw."

The millionaire's pudgy public relations expert, Johnny Meyers, testified last summer that Hughes Reynhad offered him a $25,000 bonus if he could get "The Outlaw" shown in New York.

last J. Hughes testified yesterday that he could not have made a $100,000 that he offered to Meyers because "it was not use of prth that kind of money" to get "The Outlaw" shown in New York.

4. Giles, who had originally issued a directive against the purchase of the planes, said he thought the planes would have been completed and used in the war if the officers at Wright Field had not insisted upon a metal plane, which mean redesigning, and if a higher priority had been given to Hughes. Plenty to Say

Meyers' denunciation of Hughes and McCarthy was touched off when Ferguson called him to the stand and asked him if he had anything to say about the testimony concerning him.

"Yes, indeed I have," Meyers shouted.

"Mr. Hughes has been talking here about the concern he feels for his reputation but I'd like to ask Mr. Hughes what he thinks will happen to my reputation from the accusations he has made here in this room."

"These are very serious charges Mr. Hughes made but I intend to prove these charges made by both him and his associate are false."

Meyers said McCarthy dined with him in 1944, but that it was one month after he signed the contract for the Hughes' planes. McCarthy had said it was before the contract was awarded.

Remembers Date

Meyers said he had fixed the date because his mother-in-law was visiting at the time and she did not arrive in Washington until May 31—or 27 days after the contract signing.

McCarthy's testimony that he had thought a job with Hughes was "a damnable lie" and his testimony that he had asked Hughes for a loan so he could purchase ten million dollars worth of Government bonds was "a plain, unadulterated lie," Meyers insisted.

McCarthy came to his home to "get me off my trade against horse races," Meyers said. He explained that he had been fighting to have horse-racing banned because it was "causing absenteeism at aircraft plants," McCarthy said he had

"several horses" and "other interests in racing."

During the evening, Meyers said he told McCarthy about a proposed bond transaction and McCarthy suggested—"he or Mr. Hughes might be of some assistance."

Meyers said he told McCarthy he "didn't need any assistance . . . didn't want any."

Relates Job Offer

Then McCarthy, he said, talked of his going to work for Hughes after the war.

"I told McCarthy I was busy and after the war if they were still interested they could talk to me if I could get out of the Army, but I said it was foolish to think I could get out and run his airplane plant."

"McCarthy also said that Hughes had a house near Los Angeles and wanted me to accept that house as a gift—a sort of insurance I would work for them after the war.

"I was shocked beyond words when I heard his statement."

Then Meyers shouted his demand for McCarthy to testify.

"I demand and request that he be brought here and put on the stand to be faced with my questions. I don't believe he dares."

not been able to locate him. Meyers said the only way Hughes could have heard of the bond deal was through McCarthy. Hughes had visited him at his home, Meyers testified, and dined with him at the Statler. Hughes had asked him to run his plant for him, if he could get out of the army. Meyers said he had told Hughes there wasn't "a Chinaman's chance" of his getting out of the army, even if he wanted to. In Los Angeles, Hughes proposed that he might get Jack Fry's job of running TWA after the war, Meyers told the committee. Indignant at Proposition Then when he was stationed in Dayton, Ohio, he said, he had a telephone call from McCarthy. "McCarthy said he had talked to Howard Hughes and he had presented a proposition to Mr. Hughes for me to borrow $250,000—not $50,000, not $200,000, but $250,000." Meyers said he was very "indignant" and told McCarthy it was "a helluva note" for him to carry such a message to Hughes. Several days later Hughes called

"And that is why I got mad at Mr. Hughes and I told him he had put me in a hell of a position to talk to me about a proposition of that kind over the telephone." He said he was "personally mad at him but not officially" and had several discussions with him that year about the FX-11. Trip to West Coast Then in November, 1946, Meyers related Hughes asked him to come to the West Coast and had Johnny Meyer arrange for his transportation. When he saw Hughes, the movie producer accused him of blocking a TWA contract with Idlewild Airport in New York and blocking the showing of "The Outlaw" in New York city theaters. Meyers said he told Hughes he had never even heard of "The Outlaw," and Hughes suggested that since he was "a good friend" of Mayor O'Dwyer he could get it released. "Hughes told me it was so important, he had so much money in it and the estimated receipts in New York were so large and the influence of its not being shown in New York would cause such heavy losses elsewhere that he could easily afford to pay me a very large fee. "He told me, 'If you'll get it released, I'll give you $100,000.'" He learned O'Dwyer was in El Centro, Calif., Meyers said, so

D. C. Investor Stands to Gross $166,250 on $2500 Stock Buy

By S. Oliver Goodman

Twenty-eight original investors in Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. realized a "paper profit" of $9,825,000 on their initial investment of $150,000, it was disclosed yesterday.

One of the 28 is J. Ross Gamble, Washington attorney, who originally bought 2500 shares of the corporation's stock for $1 a share. Gamble stands to gross about $166,250, less commissions and taxes, on his $2500 investment, it was estimated.

Details were disclosed here yesterday when the Securities and Exchange Commission permitted Texas Eastern's amended registration statement, covering 3,564,000 shares of no-par common stock, which is to be offered publicly at $9.50 a share, to become effective. Here's the background, according to the prospectus filed with the SEC.

Organized Last January

When Texas Eastern was organized last January in Houston, Tex., to buy the war-built "Big" and "Little Inch" pipelines with a successful bid of $143,127,000, it had an authorized capital of 250,000 shares of $1 par common stock.

Of the authorized shares, 150,000 were sold to an investing group of 17 from New York, District of Columbia, Texas and Louisiana, as well as 11 associates of the investment banking firm of Dillon, Read & Co., Inc.

Last Friday these 150,000 shares were reclassified on the basis of 7 shares for 1, into 1,050,000 shares of new stock worth $9,875,000 on the basis of the public sale price of $9.50 a share.

Only one holder, Gamble of this city, will sell his shares in the public offering. The reclassification gave Gamble 17,500 shares of new stock and he proposes to sell 14,000 shares. At the public offering price, he will receive $133,000 less taxes and commissions for the portion sold, while the portion kept would be worth $33,250. It is estimated that he will get about $119,000 if all of his 14,000 shares are purchased by the public.

The remainder of the 3,564,000 shares registered with the SEC will be sold by Texas Eastern. The reclassified shares held by the original investing group would represent "22.83 per cent of the total shares outstanding after the sale of the common shares being sold by the company," according to the prospectus. There will be 4,600,000 shares of the company's authorized 6,000,000 shares of common outstanding after the sale.

Expert in Gas Cases

Gamble, a member of the Washington law firm of Leighton & Gamble, attended Eastern High School and National University Law School. He is "about 38 or 39" and has established a reputation as a specialist in natural gas law. Much of his legal work has been in appearances before the Federal Power Commission and the

Texas Eastern Stock Offered at $9.50 a Share

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—Funds to provide part of the purchase price of the "Big Inch" and "Little Inch" pipelines were sought today by a group of investment dealers headed by Dillon, Read & Co.

The syndicate offered to the public at $9.50 each 3,564,000 shares of common stock of Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. Texas Eastern has operated the lines since May 1.

Texas Eastern submitted the winning bid of $143,127,000 for the gas lines and has been operating them since May 1, 1947.

To provide additional funds, the transmission company also announced plans to sell 120 million dollars of first mortgage pipeline bonds, with 3½ per cent coupon and due in 1962, to a group of leading life insurance companies at a price of 101.

The financing, the company stated, "involves the transfer from Government to private ownership of the largest and most important property in the category of surplus war materials."

Liberalizing Of Tax Called Building Spur

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—A plan to liberalize income tax allowances for larger amortization on mortgages in order to stimulate the construction of rental housing has been prepared for submission to Congress by the National Committee on Housing.

Outlined by Fred H. Ludwig of Reading, Pa., president of the committee, at a press conference here, the plan would permit investors on approval of the Federal Housing Agency to charge off annually for the next five years up to 10 per cent of a project's cost as emergency amortization in addition to the normal depreciation rates of 2½ per cent.

This accelerated retirement of debt and consequent reduction of interest burden would be recognized by the Internal Revenue Bureau, under the plan, to avert increases in rents.

Survey Results Cited

The National Housing Committee, which is a clearing house for ideas of builders, bankers and others connected with the housing industry, tested the plan among members in five large cities and contends that it would produce a minimum of 83,500 apartments in the next two years in those cities alone.

Henry M. Propper, executive vice president of the committee, reported that a sampling survey indicated that the plan would produce 50,000 dwelling units in the Los Angeles area, 20,000 in San Francisco, 10,000 in Chicago, 2000 in Kansas City and 1500 in Salt Lake City.

Retrieved by Post Ad Right Away

Can cats find their way home from any distance? Perhaps they can, if given time, but Mrs. Letitia Galloway, 1661 Wisconsin Avenue, was anxious to get back her missing gray-eared, blue-eyed Siamese cat as soon as possible. So instead of relying on the cat's homing powers, Mrs. Galloway ran a result-getting "Lost" ad in The Washington Post. The Post took her plea into a certain home less than a mile away and retrieved the roving feline without delay.

Have you a pet that strays from home? A Post ad conducts your search throughout the city quickly, effectively, and at little cost. You can place your notice by phone, cancel it when you get results, and pay for only the number of times it actually appeared.

One on the Aisle—

Grieg—And Henry Gibson

'Song of Norway'
Opens at National

By Richard L. Coe

SCHUBERT HAS HIS "Blossom Time," Tchaikovsky his "Music in My Heart" and Edvard Grieg his "Song of Norway." Though the latter has two New York years and one on the road to its credit, it was performed for the first time last night at the National.

"Song of Norway" is in good shape. It looks handsome, sounds robust and received a happy welcome from the first-nighters. By 1967 it may have dwindled into the limp "Blossom Time" to which we have become accustomed in recent years, but Edwin Lester is proving a cautious producer. While the principals are not those which introduced it, the production itself has been kept at an unusually high level for a long-run hit.

A willing suspension of disbelief is a requirement to the enjoyment of these operettas whose music is based on themes of great composers and whose plots are said to have some semblance to life. This time it is made easier than such exhibits generally by avoiding most of those horrible lines that pass for humor in operettas. What ones there are in "Song of Norway" are in the suave hands of Sig Arno, whose presence would have been a boon to all operetta revivals in recent years.

The music is certainly the reason for "Song of Norway." Some 200 Grieg themes have been bunched together in this score (with a touch of Ponchielli's "Dance of the Hours") and they make for some handsome choral arrangements.

Well-Loved Melodies

The inevitable A-Minor Piano Concerto is what the movies would call the theme song and it's dashingly done by Edmund Horn at the piano in the orchestra pit. "Ich Liebe Dich," the first two Pech Gynt suites, the Norwegian Dances, "Wedding in Troldhaugen" and countless other favorites become fine operetta material, though the lyrics of some may weary you ("Strange music in my ears; strange music of the spheres" etc.).

The plot is that familiar one of the poor composer who rises to heights only to realize that there's no place like home. In Grieg's case, home being Norway, we are introduced to many of those quaint local customs which appear to be observed only in operettas. Then there are such trying sequences as when the sound of a piano's glissando comes unmistakably from the orchestra pit and a prima donna retreats to a window at stage left and sighs: "But who is playing the piano?" And there are platitudes like "Is it fair to expect blunt men to know such things as music and art?"

Has Certain Appeal

These are to be expected in musical biographies and it is to the credit of "Song of Norway" and its cast that they seem less absurd than they are. Apart from an archness in the prima donna that rudely reminded us of Beatrice Lillie and the insistent "Henry Gibson" shouts and murmurs which were summoned by the appearance of another Norwegian, Henrik Ibsen, the company enters its duties with charming elan, particularly one lovely looking chorus miss whose dress in the ballroom scene is a lively green.

Apart from the beautifully timed humors of Arno, the work of Melva Niles as the composer's wife seemed particularly outstanding. Ralph Magelsen's Grieg is effectively sung and capably acted. Gilbert Russell is good as the composer's poet friend. Though George Balanchine is programmed as the choreographer (that is, he thinks up the dance routines), the ballet and dancing numbers have surprisingly little originality about them. "Song of Norway" is a colorful, melodious operetta and its welcome from Manhattan to the Golden Gate is proof of its certain appeal.

ANOTHER OPERETTA is on the week's calendar—"Iolanthe." This Gilbert and Sullivan favorite will be done Friday night and at two Saturday performances by Ethel Manning's Columbia Light Opera Co. in Roosevelt High's auditorium, 13th and Allison sts. nw. Heading the cast of local players are Maria de la Hull, in the title role, James Waldo, Harry Crow, Kathleen Hillyer, Stuart McKinstry, Ches di Maggio, Catherine Emory, Inge Deimzer and Marjorie Hutcheson. New Disney Wows the Sprouts
Though It Isn't 'Fantasia'

Walt Disney's latest, "Fun and Fancy Free," drew a whole of a crowd at yesterday's holiday opening at Keith's. Youngsters dominated the audiences and they very obviously had a grand time.

Which is how things should be for "Fun and Fancy Free." The cartoon master set out to please with tricks that are now quite familiar, and please he decidedly does with the help of a new character, Bongo, Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd, Dinah Shore and, of course, Edgar Bergen.

For all that, "Fun and Fancy Free" is not first-rank Disney. Actually it is two lengthened shorts bridged by the character of inquisitive Jiminy Cricket. There is a tendency toward repetition which won't disturb the youngsters a bit, but which will send old Disney fans burrowing into their memories to ask in which Disney film that was used before.

Such, of course, is the fruit of success. Having pioneered so often in his field, Disney's problem is the one of constantly turning up with something new. To keep his empire going, Disney's inspiration must be kept to a timetable, an unlikely miracle.

So "Fun and Fancy Free," while it delights the children, is one of those workmanlike, uninspired patterns which will not thrill you with the sense of discovery which "Snow White" and "Fantasia" achieved so handsomely.

There are flashes of charm. The beanstalk accidentally planted by those three farmers, D. Duck, M. Mouse and T. (for "The") Goo, leads to a bright scamper for the beanstalk and giddy adventures for the sleeping trio.

The songs are reminiscent of Disney's traditionally happy tunes. Outstanding is one about the custom of bears: they slap each other as a token of affection, "Say It

11 Suspensions For Disloyalty Studied by Navy

NAVY: Before Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan are the cases of three suspended Navy employees who are accused of disloyalty. In addition, eight other cases of suspended employees are being studied by the three-man Navy loyalty appeals board here whose chairman is Charles Plozet. This board will make a recommendation in each case to the Navy Secretary.

The 11 cases all involve employees in field stations outside of this city. Secretary Sullivan recently cleared a twelfth case and the accused employee was ordered restored to duty without prejudice.

Should the Navy Secretary order the firing of any employee on disloyalty charges, that person will be given the right to appeal to the newly created Loyalty Review Board which has been set up in the Civil Service Commission. The Navy will cooperate with that board and the President's Federal worker loyalty program in general, even though a special law gives it arbitrary and absolute power to fire any employee in the interest of national security.

In other words, Navy won't use the special law except, perhaps, in some remote or extreme case. Officials say the law hasn't been used as such in two years. A hearing and an opportunity to answer charges is given all of its accused employees. This procedure is used:

First, the local Navy loyalty board, made up of three members, hears the case; the commanding officer then studies it on appeal; the case can then be appealed to the overall Navy loyalty board here (the Plozet board), and this board recommends disposition of the case to the Secretary.

Now that the President's loyalty program is finally underway, the accused Navy employees will be given additional protection. Employees who are ordered fired by the Secretary on disloyalty charges may appeal to the Civil Service Commission of the seven State Department employees who were fired arbitrarily under another special law as "bad security risks." The commission will take up the cases if and when the people file appeals.

But here's an interesting and tragic angle that grew out of the State's inexcusable bungling of its absolute authority to fire any employee on security charges:

The only formal appeal now pending before the commission involves one of the three State employees who was fired and who, apparently, was later cleared by the department and permitted to resign. But State refused to restore him to his job.

This former employee wants his case heard by the commission and he wants his name cleared once and for all by the Government even though State officials admit privately that his case was a "tragedy of errors." He contends that he has been rejected for one job after another because no other Federal agency or private employer cares to take a chance on him.

He says that prospective employers are suspicious of him because of State's clumsy and cover-up handling of his case.

All of which places the commission in a peculiar position. Technically, the commission isn't supposed to hear any cases unless the employees involved are fired. Meantime, the seven fired employees are demanding the right to "resign" from the State Department. But one of the three employees who was permitted to resign has discovered to his bitter sorrow that this privilege hasn't helped him to clear his name and his reputation. The damage was done by the original firing and no subsequent action has been able to repair it.

Obviously, State should restore the three employees who were permitted to resign to their jobs. This is the only positive action that could clear up their names and their cases. State should correct its own errors instead of trying to pass the buck to some other agency. No other agency can adequately do the job.

TURNOVER in Federal agencies is falling. It's now lower than during the war immediately following V-J Day, according to the Civil Service Commission.

Last September, for example, there were 72,900 separations and 59,900 people hired by Uncle Sam for full-time jobs. In fact, separations have exceeded new employees each month since August, 1945, with but a single exception.

A survey shows that more than half of the people who leave Government resign voluntarily.

President Leads the Nation in Honoring War Dead

RITES IN ARLINGTON—President Harry Truman places his wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery at yesterday's Armistice Day ceremony.

Rear Admiral James H. Fossitt. Honor guard of service men flank the tomb. A cold, driving rain beats down upon the scene with him in prayer for those who gave their lives that others might live.

Thousands Honor Dead

A few minutes later, Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan told the amphitheater spectators that preparedness is the price of peace and that to "secure an enduring and just peace we must also be strong militarily."

"In the months since V-J Day," he said, "we have pared this (military) strength down to but a shadow of its former size, and day by day, as demobilization has progressed, our representatives in the council of powers have found their tasks increasingly difficult."

Sullivan said the United States cannot jeopardize its security "in the hope that others will again win for us the time we need to prepare to defend ourselves."

May Be No Time

"The next time," he warned, "there may be no time."

The same note was struck by other military and naval leaders, reminding the public that although the final surrender of World War II had been signed a little more than a year ago, the world was not yet securely at peace.

Preceding Sullivan, James F. O'Neill, national commander of the American Legion, warned that "only an America first in spiritual and military preparedness" can move toward a lasting peace. He urged military training for youths as a "decisive step away from war."

The Arlington ceremony began with the grouping of Army, Navy and Marine honor guard detachments from District installations. The American Legion National Guard of Honor, immaculately dressed in slick, black raincoats and black and red overseas caps, also participated.

President Truman, after a 21-gun salute, was joined at the cemetery by Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the President; Secretary of Defense James Forrestal; Secretary of the Navy Sullivan; Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, military aide to the President; and Rear Admiral James H. Fossitt, naval aide.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, who also accompanied the President during the ceremony, sat in the front row of the amphitheater stage during Secretary Sullivan's address.

Only a few brave spectators sat on the gleaming, wet marble benches of the open auditorium, while the remainder huddled under the little shelter available.

During the sounding of "Taps," a wind swept rain across the marble monument as the audience stood bareheaded.

Some looked out from the walls of the amphitheater noting the beauty of the autumn foliage on the trees and realizing that their loved ones could no longer appreciate the scene.

Later in the day, Maj. Gen. A. C. McAllister, famed commander of the 101st Airborne Division in the World War II Battle of the Bulge, urged the Nation to "let us remain strong. Let us not forget the lesson of the last 30 years. To do less would be to break faith with those who died so that we might have a better world."

The general, speaking at the services of the Second Division Association at the Second Division Monument, 17th st. and Constitution ave., asked Americans to "show the same patriotism and strength displayed by those who honor today" and said that one way this should be done is to "make the United Nations an effective instrument for peace."

Groups Place Wreaths

Beginning early in the morning, area organizations, undeterred by the heavy rains, carried out wreath-laying ceremonies. At Arlington, wreaths were placed by the following groups, in addition to unscheduled observances:

AMERICAN LEGION SERVICES—Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan (right, standing), declares "the price of peace will continue to be preparedness" in his address at Armistice Day rites in Arlington Amphitheater. Among

the Army and Navy Union, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Virginia Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars; the Gold Star Wives of World War I; various units of the American Legion; the National Auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans; the Third Division Association; the District Congress of Parents and Teachers and the Japanese-American Citizens' League.

At the Second Division Monument, wreaths were placed by the national headquarters, American Gold Star Mothers; the District Department, American Legion; District Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars; the Army and Navy Union; Second Division Post No. 28, American Legion; New York City Post 860, American Legion; the Cleveland, Ohio, District and Penn-Jersey Branches, Second Division Association, and the headquarters of the association.

Colors Presented

At Fort Meyer, the colors of the 317th Infantry Regiment, Eighteenth Infantry Division, were presented to its successor, the 317th Glider Infantry Regiment (Res.).

A morning ceremony and wreath-laying was held by the Society of the First Division at its monument, 17th st. and Executive ave. n.w. The French Embassy sponsored a ceremony for the war dead at St. Matthew's Cathedral.

The District posts of the Catholic War Veterans participated in a military mass at St. Joseph's Church, 2d and C sts. n.e.

In Alexandria, Charles G. Carlin, Jr., editor and publisher of the Alexandria Gazette, was presented with a citizenship Medal at an Armistice Day program sponsored by the Russell Mitchell Post, 609, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Ceremony Held at Army

In Silver Spring, the Clatsop-Saxon Post, American Legion, led a ceremony at the Silver Spring Armory, followed by an open-house program at the Legion's new home on Sligo ave.

John L. Golob, national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, in a special Armistice Day statement, charged that commanding the observance of the end of both world wars into one Armistice Day was "an injustice to the millions of men who fought in World War I."

He explained that "there can never be too many days of remembrance of our war dead and living disabled. If we in this country had paid a little more attention to the meaning of Armistice Day observances after the first world war, perhaps we would not have had a second world war."

In the District and nearby Maryland, the day was a legal holiday. Federal, District and State offices were closed, although stores were generally open.

Throughout the Nation, the anniversary of the day when the world rejoiced at the ending of conflict was marked by programs. Many featured high-ranking civilian and armed service officials.

Gen. Mark Clark, wartime Fifth Army commander, speaking at San Francisco, asserted Communists "are making the greatest efforts of all time to enslave the peoples of the world."

At Philadelphia, Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall declared the United States must adopt universal military training because the world is in a state "which we cannot sensibly face without adequate military force."

In an address at Cincinnati, Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger said "if, over a period of years, we had prudently expended 25 billion dollars for industrial preparedness and airplanes—this as against the 700 billion dollars this war will have cost us by 1972—neither Germany nor Japan would have dared fight us."

Dedications Monument

Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Marine Corps commandant, dedicated a monument at Savannah, Ga., and said, "If we do not preserve the peace which they have purchased at so great a cost, we will have held their lives too cheaply. We will have betrayed their trust."

At Princeton, N. J., Albert Einstein declared in an address transmitted by direct wire to Cleveland university students that "no corner of this planet is safe against sudden destruction" unless the world succeeds soon in "putting an end to the state of anarchy in its domain of international politics."

Gen. George C. Kenney, commanding general of the Strategic Air Command, said in New York that if our defenses are permitted to lapse "the probability is that the United States as we now know it will cease to exist."

In an address before a world peace dinner at Birmingham, Ala., Veterans' Administrator Omar N. Bradley warned that European recovery is the price of peace and said the United States must be "willing to pay for it."

In his Armistice Day statement, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations, called for a rededication of "the strength inherent in our land, sea and air arms to the principles of a democratic America."

Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of Army Ground Forces, said Armistice Day "will be a reminder of the possibility of armed conflict, despite the efforts of civilized nations to insure everlasting peace."

Negroes Hit Transfer Plan For Schools

Buildings Involved Called 'Handed-Down' And 'Out-of-Date'

More than 100 Negro members of parent-teacher groups and civic associations met yesterday to protest what speakers termed the transfers of "handed-down," out-of-date, white schools to Negro children.

Those attending the meeting in the basement of the First Baptist Church, 1008 Whittingham pl. n.e., were told that the proposed transfer of five white schools—Webb, Blow, Hayes, Bowen and Lenox—will "perpetuate the policy of segregation."

The protest meeting was held on the eve of a public hearing by the Board of Education on the transfers at the Franklin Administration Building, 13th and K sts. n.w., at 1 p. m. today.

Cornish Proposed Transfers

Yesterday's meeting was sponsored by the Citizens Emergency School Committee which represents Negro parent-teacher groups and civic associations in the far northeast section of the city.

The transfers have been proposed by Superintendent of Schools Robert M. Cornish so that 3301 Negro students now attending school part time can be put in full-time classes. The move would also involve the transfer of about 1700 white students.

Alfred D. Calvert, president of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association, announced last night that he would attend today's public hearing to oppose transfer of the Webb and Blow schools in behalf of the white residents of his community.

At yesterday's protest meeting John B. Duncan, Government attorney and representative of the Benning Heights Civic Association, asked:

"In Washington it is necessary to transfer old and dilapidated schools to Negro citizens? As a result of that policy the vast majority of Negro schools are old handed-down schools built more than 50 years ago—while the vast majority of white schools were built since 1900 and are not handed-down schools."

"The transfer will only perpetuate a policy of segregation which is diametrically opposed to the recommendation of President Truman's Committee on Civil Rights."

Charles J. Quander, secretary of the Kingman Park Civic Association, said that Blow and Webb, both elementary schools, are unsuitable for use as junior high schools.

"There are no auditoriums, cafeteria or shop facilities in these buildings," he said. "The heating plant at Blow does not heat the building and the stairways at Webb have been condemned by the Fire Department."

Hearings Requested

Mrs. Elsie Z. Watkins, secretary of the Board of Education, said last night that 14 formal requests to be heard had been received at the close of business Monday. They were:

The Federation of Civic Associations, the P-T-A of the Amidon-Bowen, Greenleaf and Fairbrothers schools; the Teachers Branch of the United Public Workers, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Far Northeast Businessmen's Association, the Southwest Civic Association, the Kingman Park Civic Association, the Northeast Neighborhood Aide, the Benning Heights Civic Association, the Capital View Civic Association, the Citizens Emergency School Committee, the Browne Junior High School P-T-A, the Northeast Boundary Citizens Association and the Blow-Webb P-T-A.

Additional requests received in economy measure.

Head-on Collision Kills District Man

Clear Tomorrow
Rain Tonight,
Windy, Cold,
Says Weebie

Weebie, The Washington Post Weatherbird, was particularly irascible yesterday when approached for his prediction of weather-to-come.

"It's raining," he croaked dismally. "But will it rain tomorrow?" "You tell me," he croaked. "You tell me if I'll get wetter walking to dinner or running!"

The assignment that bird can think up, and on holidays, too!

He'll get a little wetter the slower he walks, but why doesn't he fly, answered and asked Dr. Russell W. Mebs, 231 N. Wakefield st., Arlington, Va., a physicist with the National Bureau of Standards. He offered to prove his point with rectangles and projected parallel-grams.

"It's an interesting question," countered Dr. Edward W. Condon, director of the NBS. "I doubt if anyone has bothered to figure it out from an angle. There's the direction of the rain. There's the time element. Does he walk erect, or hunch forward? Personally, I'd run."

"Why," asked Dr. Condon, "don't you ask Weebie this one? If he were in a cage that was suspended on a spring balance, what difference, if any, would it make on that balance between being perched in that cage, or flying around in it?"

"It will be rainy and windy tonight, with strong northwest winds and colder," answered Weebie. "Tomorrow will be clearing, with a temperature high in the afternoon of about 52 degrees."

He pecked a few crumbs off his waistcoat, and gave his best dismissal look.

"Oh, yes," he mumbled. "Forget about that question."

"I sent out for dinner tonight."

Uniform D. C. Merit System Is Proposed

Washington's municipal personnel system was scored yesterday as "varied and complicated" in a statement by the House Home Rule Subcommittee of Representative James C. Auerhahn (R., N. J.).

The subcommittee's solution for present personnel practices is a city-wide merit system, proposed as part of its District reorganization and home rule program.

The subcommittee criticized the present setup on the ground that "there seems to be no rational basis as to why some District agencies come under the Federal civil service and why some do not."

"Neither does there seem to be any rational basis for some agencies selecting their employees by a formal merit system and some selecting employees at the discretion of the head of the agency."

Under the subcommittee's District merit system, plan all employees except policy-makers and laborers would be selected under the Federal Civil Service Law.

The District would be left the choice of having the system operated by its own personnel director, or of paying the U. S. Civil Service Commission to run it.

Teachers and library employees would be left under the separate merit system now in effect for the schools.

Federal retirement laws would be extended to all District jobs except policemen and firemen. They would keep a separate retirement setup, but their payroll deductions would be boosted from 3 1/2 to 5 percent, the Federal deduction rate.

Voteless Status Of D. C. Deplored

An Arlington County Board member yesterday urged immediate congressional legislation to grant District citizens the right to vote and termed Washington's voteless status a "blot on the face of American democracy."

Board Member Daniel A. Dugan of 951 North Livingston st., Arlington, made his recommendations on District suffrage to the District Post No. 4, American Veterans of World War II, on the request of the veterans' group.

District residents "should not be forced into the position of having to vote on the question of whether or not they will be allowed to vote in the future," Dugan said, adding that Washingtonians already possess the right of franchise under the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

This morning's mail will also be honored, Mrs. Watkins said.

Not listed by Mrs. Watkins but announcing it would be represented today was the Southeast Businessmen's Association.

At today's meeting, the board will also consider another recommendation by Dr. Cornish that five buildings—Corcoran, Dent, Hilton chief of the State Department's Greek-Turkish-Italian division, and Mrs. Winston Burdett, who recently returned from Italy.

Relief To Be Topic At AVC Luncheon

Foreign relief will be discussed at a luncheon meeting of the Press-Radio Wing of the American Veterans Committee at 12:30 p. m. today at the YWCA, 17th and K sts. n.w.

The discussion panel will include Undersecretary of Agriculture Norris E. Dodd, Harry F. Jernigan, chief of the State Department's Greek-Turkish-Italian division, and Mrs. Winston Burdett, who recently returned from Italy.

Truck-Taxi Crash Proves Fatal to T. J. Woodyard

Thomas J. Woodyard, 48, of 309 Maryland ave. n.e., died of a broken neck yesterday shortly after the taxi in which he was riding collided head on with a truck on U. S. Highway No. 1 at Greenbelt rd.

Woodyard, a brother of Arlington County, Va., Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard, died before arrival at Leland Memorial Hospital.

Owner of the taxi and a driver for the Atwood Transportation Co., the victim was riding in the cab with Roy L. Brown, 45, of 1309 Holbrook st. n.e.

The truck driver, Theodore J. Woods, of Sheriff rd., Fairmount Heights, Md., told police a car cut in front of his truck and that when he applied the brakes, the truck skidded, bounced against the curbing and back into the northbound traffic lane.

Both Woods and Brown were charged with reckless driving and manslaughter and released on $1100 bonds each for appearance in the Hyattsville Police Court at 10 a. m. December 4.

Woodyard, a native of Arlington, had lived in the District for about 20 years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ann Kennedy Woodyard; another brother, Reginald E. Woodyard, and a sister.

Woman's Leg Broken

Rain-slippery highways were blamed for another two-car crash on Mount Vernon Memorial highway a half-mile south of National Airport about 3:40 p. m.

Lucia Flister, 34, of 416 Bashford la., Alexandria, was taken to Alexandria Hospital suffering from a broken leg and bruises when her car was struck by a neighbor's, Richard A. Vickery, 25, of 610 Bashford la.

Park police said an auto driven by Charles Otis Robinson, 1527 N. 17th st., Arlington, skidded over the highway traffic line, forcing the Vickery car into that driven by Miss Flister. Vickery was slightly injured.

Two Aged Men Injured

In Washington, two aged men were injured in traffic.

Rev. Frederick W. Johnson, 63-year-old retired Baptist minister, of 401 Seward sq. s.e., suffered fractures of the right hip and shoulder when he walked into the side of a moving ice truck. He had started across the street at North Carolina ave. at 4th st. s.e., police reported.

He was taken to Casualty Hospital. Driver of the truck was Ernest Stevenson, 35, of 1335 3rd st. s.w.

The other man was 75-year-old Benjamin F. Chamberlin, of 1030 30th st. n.w., a retired Army sergeant. He was struck as he crossed M st. n.w. in the 3000 block and suffered a fractured left leg. He was taken to Mt. Alto Hospital.

Driver of the car was Jurney R. Guy, 2315 N. Kenmore st., Arlington, Va.

Hope for Peace Is at Brightest, McClintock Says

Armistice Day, 1947, is "tinged with greater hope for peace than we ever had before," a United States diplomat declared yesterday.

Robert Mills McClintock, special assistant to the director, Office of Special Political Affairs, State Department, told a Washington Advertising Club luncheon at Hotel Statler that proper use of the United Nations would obviate a bleak future.

"If the United States continues, as it firmly intends, to use the U. N. as a primary instrument of international police . . . and if other foreign officers do the same, then I do not despair of the future," he asserted.

McClintock warned, however, that "we have before us an extremely difficult path." He gave his assurance that the State Department would do its "utmost" to make the U. N. succeed.

2 More Judges Named For Water Color Contest

Berryville, Va., Nov. 11 (Sp.)—Two additional judges have been named for the Luta Poyner Hendricks Water Color Contest, to be held from Friday through Sunday at the Berryville Community Building.

Appointed to complete the six-judge panel were Loren Russell Fisher of Washington, 1940 Prix de Rome winner, who has just completed a series of drawings of historic Alexandria homes, and Maebelle Perry Edwards, president of the Washington Chapter of the National Society of Arts and Letters and a prominent sculptress and water color artist.

The contest, open to amateur artists of Clarke and Loudoun counties, is sponsored annually by Miss Genevieve Hendricks of Washington and Blumont, in memory of her mother.

$500 Earring Is Lost By Wife of Ex-Envoy

A $500 earring set with a pearl and diamond was reported to police as lost yesterday by Mrs. Ann B. Scotten, 2552 Massachusetts ave. n.w., wife of Robert M. Scotten, former ambassador to Ecuador and Guatemala.

Mrs. Scotten told police she believed she lost the earring in a cab sometime between 11:30 a. m. and 3 p. m. Monday.

John Hamilton, 209 K st. n.w., described by his wife as pastor of the High Tower Church of God, reported he had recovered $1000 in cash which he thought he had left in a cab.

Police said Mrs. Scotten two identified boys found a billfold containing 10 $100 bills, property of the church, near Hamilton's home and returned it.

Mrs. Helen J. Zeller, 1458 Fairmont st. n.w., reported to police she lost a brown leather handbag in a restaurant at Connecticut ave. and Dupont Circle about 6:15 p. m. Monday. She said the handbag contained a yellow gold wedding band studded with seven diamonds and valued at $300.

Housing Move Grows

Sponsors of a mutual housing movement in the town of Greenbelt announced yesterday that 100 members had been added to their rolls following a public meeting at Greenbelt High School Sunday night.

The plan, under which Greenbelt homes would be purchased from the Government by present occupants acting as a single organization, is being pushed by the new Greenbelt Mutual Housing Association. It has been authorized to negotiate for purchase of the homes through a private development concern.

A drive to enlist new members will continue through November 25.

Answer Fire in Furnace

An overheated furnace sent Kennington (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department apparatus racing to the Kennington Town Hall to answer what turned out to be a false alarm yesterday. Firemen said the only trace of fire was found in the furnace which, blazing merrily away, had built up the temperature within the building to a point where it set off an automatic fire alarm governed by a thermostat.

To Aid Scientists

A drive to collect clothing for needy scientists and their families in Europe will be launched today among wives of scientists on the staff of the Applied Physics Laboratory of Johns Hopkins University, 8621 Georgia ave., Silver Spring.

The committee, which has set a goal of 7000 pounds of relief supplies for the opening week of the drive, is working through the Washington Area Relief Mobilization, headed by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman. In charge of the campaign are Mrs. Ralph E. Gibson, wife of the acting director of the laboratory, and Mrs. James A. Van Allen, Mrs. Robert C. Herman, Mrs. Alexander Kossiakoff, Mrs. J. Einstein Says Safety Lies in World Order

Action Deferred

Hospital Plan Interests College Unit

The board of trustees of Catholic Sisters College yesterday expressed "definite interest" in a proposal for a new Providence Hospital.

But the board took no definite action pending appointment of an archbishop for the Washington-Baltimore archdiocese, who will have authority over the question. The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, pastor of St. Gabriel's church here, has been administrator of the archdiocese since the death of Archbishop Curley May 16.

A new hospital to augment or replace the present Providence Hospital has been proposed on the grounds of the College and Catholic University. Both are separate corporations, but have close ties. The college board spokesman said the college is willing to sell "a portion of its property for the purpose" and went on record as being "sympathetic" to the project.

Hospital Use As Doctors' 'School' Urged

Baltimore, Nov. 11 (AP).—The Maryland-District of Columbia Hospital Association wound up its annual conference here today after hearing one suggestion there should be a 50-bed hospital within 30 miles of every home and another that hospitals should serve as an educational center for doctors in their areas.

D. George Baehr, president of the New York Academy of Medicine and professor of clinical medicine at Columbia University, predicted there will be an expansion of pre-payment medical care plans.

It was Dr. Baehr who advanced the suggestion hospitals must become educational centers. "Hospitals of the future will be something better than mere boarding houses for sick people, as most of them are at present," he declared. He prefaced his statements with a review of the coordinated program of treatment and training developed in Baltimore by Johns Hopkins Hospital and the Johns Hopkins University Medical School.

Graham M. Davis, president of the American Hospital Association, advanced the proposal there should be a 50-bed hospital within 30 miles of everyone.

Describing the work of the Kellogg Foundation in Michigan, he said rural hospitals are becoming health centers as well as places of treatment for the sick and injured.

J. D. Coleman, executive director of Maryland Hospital Services, Inc. (Blue Cross), and secretary of the association's committee on medical care, outlined a survey made of the State's hospital needs.

Seal Chairmen Named In Prince William

Manassas, Va., Nov. 11 (Sp.).—Appointment of chairmen for eight divisions of the annual Prince William County Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale has been announced by Mrs. Frank D. Cox, chairman for the county-wide drive.

Sub-chairmen include Mrs. Edgar E. Rohr, Manassas District; Mrs. L. J. Pattie, Gainesville District; Mrs. Fred T. Shepherd, Brentsville District; Mrs. Paul Cornwell, Coles District; Mrs. James Young, Dumfries District; Mrs. Eva M. Garner, Occoquan District; Mrs. Dorothy Hall, Negro auxiliary, and Miss Sue Ayres, schools.

The county unit has been assigned a quota of $223 for the drive, which will start officially November 24. Last year's quota was $2118.

'Communist' Letters to Pastor Bring Police Guard for Church

Baltimore, Nov. 11 (AP).—Police made extra patrols to keep an eye on the downtown First Presbyterian Church today after the pastor reported receiving three anonymous notes he said were "rapidly in favor of Russia and against the United States."

The altar tabernacle at Grace and St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, a block away, was desecrated by vandals "Sunday night. The interior of a synagogue in the same general neighborhood was wrecked two weeks ago."

Sudden Death Can Strike Anywhere on Earth, He Declares

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP).—Dr. Albert Einstein declared today "no corner of this planet is safe against sudden destruction" unless the world succeeds soon in "putting an end to the state of anarchy in the domain of international politics."

In an address transmitted by direct radio wire to Cleveland University students, members of the newly organized World Security Workers, the famed scientist asserted:

"I am thankful that you are about to start energetic public action for the cause of world government. For the vital importance of this aim has not yet completely penetrated the consciousness of the voters of this country. . . ."

"Technical development favors aggression," he continued, "and has made defense on the basis of national armament ineffective." Dr. Einstein said he was convinced the "strong latent will" of the common people throughout the world favored "creation of a supranational authority based on law for the establishment of secure peace."

Board Blames Registrar for Loss of 210 Cards

Richmond, Va., Nov. 11 (AP).—Richmond's electoral board has closed its investigation of 210 missing registrations for Tuesday's elections with a statement that their loss for five days was due to "negligence."

The board, at the conclusion of a second hearing last night, said it "severely reprimands" Vernon N. Davis, the general registrar.

Workers in the registrar's office testified they had no knowledge of how the cards happened to be in a cardboard box in a closet at the office, where they were located Saturday. They represented registrations at five temporary offices for September 19, 20, 22, 23, and 24, and their loss brought many complaints when registrants found they could not vote Tuesday.

Fire Razes Restaurant Near Salisbury

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 11 (AP).—A stubborn fire early today destroyed a new restaurant, an automobile parts and paint shop and a car about four miles south on U. S. 13. Damage was estimated at $50,000. The cause was not immediately determined.

A fire about 18 months ago did an estimated $25,000 to "Dover's" adjacent garage. A fire Sunday forenoon in Salisbury destroyed adjoining structures which housed eight small apartments and four stores, doing an estimated $20,000 damage and leaving 15 homeless.

Cab and Driver's Body Removed From Lake

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 11 (AP).—The body of Lindsay Wilson, cab driver, and the car he had been driving here, were removed from Lake Matoaka by city police last night. Wilson had been reported missing since Saturday night. His body was found in the front seat of the car, which was in 10 feet of water about 30 feet from the lake's dam.

The vehicle was found by police who noted a break in the roadway and investigated. Wilson was married and the father of three children.

Mass Meeting Set At Fairfax Tomorrow

The Rotary Club of Fairfax, Va., will sponsor a mass meeting for the Monticello highway in the auditorium of Fairfax High School at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington and Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) will speak. Similar mass meetings are scheduled for other counties through which the proposed highway will pass.

Black Caddy Comes Home

Demonstrators Again Protest Whelan Ban Against Negroes

Employees in the Longfellow Building staged a second demonstration at the new Whelan drug store there yesterday, as the store stood pat on its service-to-whites-only policy.

About 80 demonstrators, including about 10 Negroes, showed up at noon and stood in lines inside the store for more than an hour. More than 100 participated in the first protest Monday.

Spokesmen for the housing branch of Local 3, United Public Workers of America, which organized the demonstrations, charge that the Whelan Co. reneged on a promise to serve Negroes at the store's cafeteria. Many Negroes are employed by Federal Public Housing Authority and the food and agriculture organizations, which occupy the Longfellow Building, Connecticut and Rhode Island avenues, nw.

R. L. Boaman, district manager for Whelan stores in this area, said the regional manager, A. H. Smith, was in New York at a meeting of Whelan officials.

"I imagine this matter is being discussed, but Smith didn't go up there for that reason."

He expressed doubt, however, that the firm would "change its mind." Boaman has indicated that other businessmen in Washington have "pressured" the store "to continue their existing policy in Washington." He added, however, that the decision was not a result of such pressure.

The store is the largest of 14 in this area and the only one with a cafeteria, said Boaman. It opened Saturday.

Hospital Survey Publication Set For Next Week

The long-awaited report on the Alexandria Hospital survey will be released for publication next week, the Rev. O. V. T. Chamberlain, chairman of the survey committee, said yesterday.

Chamberlain said the completed report will be discussed first, however, at a closed meeting of hospital and city officials to be held Saturday.

The survey, made during the past three months by Dr. J. R. Clemmons of New York City, resulted from a dispute between the city and the hospital over rates to be charged for welfare patients. A year ago the hospital asked $8.81 a day plus a $30,000 grant. The city has offered to sign a contract at a flat rate of $7 a day.

Maryland Park P-TA To Meet Tomorrow

A general business meeting of the Maryland Park High School Parent-Teacher Association will be held at the school tomorrow at 8 p. m. in connection with the current observance of National Education Week. A discussion of school projects will be led by Mrs. Elizabeth S. Harrington, member of the Greenbelt Town Council and president of the Prince Georges County P-TA Council.

As a feature of the Education Week observance, the school is open daily for inspection by parents and residents of the community.

School Fire Put Out, Children Sent Back

Baltimore, Nov. 11 (AP).—Four hundred grammar school children filed out of Public School No. 6 this morning when fire broke out in a second-floor cloakroom.

When firemen quickly extinguished the flames, Miss Harriet Kerchoff, principal, told the pupils to file right back for classes this afternoon.

Cooperative Upholds Board In Ouster of Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 11 (AP).—Southern States Cooperative today upheld the action of its board of directors in dismissing Fulton Lewis, Jr., Mutual Broadcasting System commentator, from membership.

The 14 directors voted October 3 to dismiss Lewis, charging he had attacked farm cooperatives and with "misinforming and misleading the public concerning Southern States in particular." In today's meeting, at which over 2000 members were present, only seven voted to allow him to retain his membership.

In an hour and a half presentation of his side of the question prior to the vote, Lewis said he would carry the matter to the courts to force the cooperative to continue his membership. He declared his dismissal would be illegal for three reasons:

1. The Southern States by-law which provides for dismissal of members for acting contrary to the best aims and best interests of the organization is illegal and will not stand up against State or Federal statutes or under the Constitution.

2. To dismiss him would violate his right of free speech. He maintains the Bill of Rights makes it illegal to punish him for exercising that right.

A.P. Covers News Here With Television Unit

The first Associated Press television newsreel unit began operating yesterday in Washington as a part of the regular news coverage by the Washington Associated Press Bureau.

It is the first of several such units which the Associated Press is now establishing to provide complete world-wide newsreel service for television stations that are Associated Press members.

THE WASHINGTON POST Wednesday, November 12, 1947 3B

Va.), Edward A. O'Neill, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Representative Porter Hardy, Jr.

Officers of the federation are to be elected Thursday. G. F. Hollinger, who has been president for the past 18 years, has announced he will not stand for reelection.

James R. Ayers, Jr., Southern States counsel, in a rebuttal declared that the real issue was whether Lewis—in numerous broadcasts—made true or untrue statements. He claimed Lewis's statements were untrue and misrepresented the aims of the cooperative and its purposes and said that Lewis also misrepresented his experiences as a member.

Virginia Farm Bureau To Convene at Richmond

Richmond, Va., Nov. 11 (AP).—Richmond will become the State's official headquarters for Virginia farmers tomorrow, when more than 500 delegates representing 21,000 members of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation open its annual convention here at the Hotel Richmond.

Johns Fails In Move to Cut Abattoir Fee

An attempt by President Brooke Johns of the Montgomery County commissioners to lower the $300 fee for slaughter houses was defeated yesterday.
Johns said he had been approached by more than 100 upper Montgomery County residents who protested the fee.
The ordinance, enacted several weeks ago, followed complaints from numerous Gaithersburg residents over erection of a slaughterhouse on the town's outskirts.
The law prohibits erecting of a slaughterhouse within 500 yards of any dwelling place or public road, and Johns said backers of the slaughterhouse claim the ordinance rules out "convenient locations."

At its meeting in Rockville, the commissioners voted to continue present arrangements under which the County Health Department supervises the Montgomery County Animal Shelter on East-West hwy. Dr. V. L. Elliott, county health officer, had asked to be relieved of the responsibility.
The resignation of Ralph L. Tarratt, public health engineer, effective Friday, was accepted by the commissioners.
A request for traffic lights at the Wheaton, Md., road triangle was referred to the State Roads Commission.

King Invests Princess With Garter Order

London, Nov. 11 (U.P.)—Princess Elizabeth became today a member of the most exclusive order of chivalry in the world when her father, King George, invested her with the "Most Noble Order of the Garter."
It is the highest honor in the King's power to bestow.
There are a handful of male holders of the garter. Elizabeth will be one of only four women holders. The others are Queen Elizabeth, her mother, Queen Mary, her grandmother, and Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands.
The Rome newspaper Giornale d'Italia yesterday published a sketch of what it asserted was the Princess's wedding gown—a close secret.
The sketch shows a heart-shaped neckline, a tiny, pointed waist line, a full swirling skirt, a fan-shaped court train hanging from the shoulders and an off-face veil held in place with a jeweled tiara.
It was announced that Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten will have for their town house the impressive regency mansion, Clarence House, adjoining St. James's Palace.

Windsor and Duchess Arrive in New York
New York, Nov. 11 (U.P.)—The Duke of Windsor arrived here aboard the Queen Mary with his Duchess today.
Asked about the royal wedding, Windsor said: "We wish them (Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten) every happiness as does everyone else."
Windsor was asked if he would comment on newspaper reports that the Duchess was not invited to the wedding and hence her husband declined to attend.
Windsor said he had not seen the reports.
The Duchess commenting on the "new look" said:
"Women should wear skirts at whatever is their most becoming length."
She was dressed in a navy blue suit of about midway length, a mink scarf of six or eight skins, a navy blue and brown turban and diamond and sapphire earrings.

Maryland U. Sweetheart to Be Elected Tonight

"The University of Maryland Sweetheart," queen of the five-day autumn carnival beginning today, will be chosen in a fashion show at 8 o'clock this evening in Ritchie Coliseum.
Twelve girls, finalists among 25 entrants, will represent sororities, dormitories and independent organizations, in a modeling contest judged by student vote, Miss Joan Ryan of Bradford, Pa., show director, said yesterday.
The autumn carnival, revival of the first carnival held in 1942, will be climaxed by the sweetheart dance Saturday evening following the Maryland-North Carolina football game at Griffith Stadium. The girl to win the modeling honors will reign over the dance. Carnival Chairman Emory Harmon of Baltimore has announced.

Damrosch Sisters Lend Hand
To Aid Bar Harbor Homeless;
'Sneezy' Story on Stalin

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

BESIDES many elaborate summer residences destroyed in the Bar Harbor holocaust some 200 small houses belonging to year-round residents were burned to the ground. Not only were many uninsured but most of the owners, routed out at the briefest notice, lost all their possessions.

One of the nicest helping hands extended to homeless Bar Harborites was a check for $5000 sent jointly by Walter Damrosch's quartette of daughters, Mrs. Herman Kaler, Mrs. Thomas Finletter, Mrs. Sidney Howard and Mrs. Robert Littell.

Octogenarian Mr. Damrosch, conductor, composer, MRS. FINLETTER, connoisseur of good living, is Bar Harbor's most beloved patriarch. His house, Blaine Cottage, was obliterated and Mr. Damrosch, who has been ill, has not been told of the loss. It contained both irreplaceable Damrosch mementos and those belonging to Mrs. Damrosch's father, the great Maine statesman, James G. Blaine, who lost by a shadow the Presidency to Grover Cleveland.

The Tom Finletters, incidentally, are remaining in Washington too briefly to suit their friends. Tom Finletter, a wartime State Department pillar, now heads the President's Air Policy Commission. Down in the Commerce Building he has conducted with great skill some of the most vital hearings of the year. Topflight aviation experts have been given opportunity to air their opinions. The commission, as you probably know, is seeking means to pep up commercial airlines, modernize our air striking force and encourage production.

Humor, Stalin-Style

IT ISN'T OFTEN a funny story about Stalin gets about. So we're only too pleased to pass it on. Stalin was addressing a huge crowd in Red Square when someone dared to sneeze. "Who sneezed?" he thundered. No one replied. "Pick out a hundred men and shoot them!" he ordered. Seconds later the whirl of machine-gun bullets ripped the air. "Who sneezed?" Stalin shouted again. No one replied. A second hundred were despatched. "Who sneezed?" he roared. A moment's silence, then a small man, way down in front pipped tremulously, "I did." Stalin started with surprise, leaned over the rostrum, pierced the offender with a steely glare and said "Gesundheit." (Good health!)

Food—and Literature

A FRIEND of this department waiting for an appointment with Food Czar Charles Luckman in the latter's office, spotted a number of books atop a tin file. Interested because they were the only items of reading matter in the room, he sauntered over. Here is what he saw, a copy of the Seventy-Eighth Congress records, a volume of Blackstone, a United States Government Manual dated 1943-44, a fat book titled "Sidney, Smith, Claggett, Price and Allied Families"

Receives BPW
Group At Tea

Mrs. Truman received some 740 members of the D. C. Business and Professional Women's Clubs at a White House tea yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Irma Gene Nevins, local president of the BPW, headed the group, which also included several members of the national federation, among whom were Dr. K. Frances Scott of Northampton, Mass., first vice president; Miss Olive H. Huston of New York, executive secretary, and Mrs. Sally G. Dunn of Auburn, Me., membership chairman.

Also attending were two State presidents, Mrs. Gladys Oliphant of Salisbury, Md., and Mrs. Irne L. Tancoast of Alexandria, Va.

Home for Holidays

Miss Hester Ann Luke, a student at Finch Junior College, and Miss Nancy Mills Luke, a student at Ashley Hall, will be at home for the Christmas holidays with their mother, Mrs. Stirling Murray Harrison and Mr. Harrison of Leesburg, Va., and their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles LeFevre of Washington.

A BEAUTIFUL dining room in the classical manner is that of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Wire, whose Spring Valley home has recently been decorated by Eugene Barnes, young Washington decorator.

In the Classical Manner

Phoenix bird scenic wallpaper forms a background for fine old Chippendale and Sheraton furniture, rare Sheffield and crystal accessories.

The use of color in the room is particularly interesting. The bright green and other vivid tones in the wallpaper are pointed up by leaf green damask draperies, and green marble.

Jewel Davis
Selects Dec. 6
Wedding Date

Former Senator James Davis announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Jewel Ann Davis, to Gerald Ryan McGuire, son of Mrs. T. Burt McGuire of New York and T. Burt McGuire, also of New York.

Miss Davis is a graduate of Holton Arms School, Finch Junior College in New York and George Washington University. She is a provisional member of the Junior League. Her father was Secretary of Labor under Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover and was Senator from Pennsylvania from 1932 to 1944.

Mr. McGuire was graduated from Portsmouth Priory School, Portsmouth, R. I., and from Georgetown University. He is a grandson of Robert J. Cuddihy of New York.

The wedding will take place December 6 at Fort Myer Chapel.

'Dancing Class'
Plans Events

"The Dancing Class," formerly known as "The Three Dances," will be held this season at the Sulgrave Club, the first dance on Saturday, December 13.

Invitations to subscribe have been sent out in the names of the sponsors, the United States Minister to Ireland and Mr. George A. Garrett; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kent Legare, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Newbold and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Warde Thoron.

Other dates for this dancing club are Saturday evenings, January 17 and February 7.

At Willard

Among overseas guests stopping for a few days at the Willard Hotel are Mrs. M. Rivera Santuce, Puerto Rico, and her two daughters; A. Garcia Perez, also of Puerto Rico; Dr. and M. G. Zuniga of Havana and Cohe R. Quas of Hale Carshire, England.

THE second-floor study in the Wire home combines the contemporary and the classical in a striking and original way. Three of its walls are olive green while the fourth and the ceiling are French grey.

The architect's desk in the corner was made about 1810 and is of solid rosewood. For the draperies Mr. Barnes has used raw silk in Scalamandre's Central Park design in olive, black, and burnt orange on a cedar background. The small chair beside the desk is an old English cockfighter's chair, upholstered in Kelly green felt. The large chair on the right is upholstered in grey and the sofa in burnt orange.

Mr. Barnes who studied at the Corcoran Art School and in Paris, has had an interior decorating studio in Chevy Chase for the past two years and opened a downtown shop Monday at 1803 Connecticut ave. nw.

Six Years Ago, After 19 Years' Marriage,
She Refused, But Her Friends Now Favor It

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Having read your splendid advice to others, I am hoping that you may help me. I have been married 25 years. My husband left me six years ago, asking for a divorce. I refused to consider divorce, thinking that he would come back. It couldn't be said that we were ever really madly in love, but we had stayed together for the children's sake.

Now I am in my forties and my friends advise me to give him the freedom he asks and make a new life for myself while I am still young enough to do so.

Wife Shrinks From Divorce
I AM very lonely in the present situation, being neither wife nor widow; but the thought of divorce frightens me. Although my husband doesn't come to see me, I always feel that he is there, so to speak, as a sort of protection for emergency.

If I do as he wishes and grant him a divorce, he will do what is right financially. All things considered, is this the constructive solution of our situation? Please state your opinions. N. F.

Woman Manifests Positive Spirit
DEAR N. F.: I'm inclined to disagree with your friends who advise you to give your husband the divorce he wants, preliminary to making a new life for yourself.

Your feeling that your husband is always there, as a sort of protection for emergency, suggests that you still feel married to him. I, e., irrevocably related to him, not just linked by legal ties, even despite his desertion and the subsequent six years' separation.

This is a significant attitude. It implies that you brought a spiritually mature, emotionally positive character to marriage; that the ceremonial words, "for better, for worse," had absolute meaning to you. And this implication is echoed again in your reflection, to-wit, "the thought of divorce frightens me."

If you were to follow modern mass example and seek divorce as the presumable solution of the situation, I'm not sure that you would be clearing ground for a more satisfactory life than you have at present. It seems equally probable, considering your temperament, that you might afterwards feel as if you had cut yourself off from roots—or reality.

Maybe Her Stand Benefits Husband
ALSO it may be that your hopeful refusal to divorce your husband is a blessing in disguise to him. He can't be a very stout character if he took to his heels six years ago, when you much preferred to make the best of the bargain and translate it into mutual insurance against loneliness in later life.

Perhaps he is neurotically allergic to the requirements of close relationship and couldn't be happy for very long nor deeply in love with any woman—nor ever more than perfunctorily concerned about the welfare of offspring.

If such is the case, it were no favor to him to turn him loose with the privilege of marrying again. On the contrary, his best protection against costlier adventures in disappointment is to remain technically tied to his first "mistake."

However, don't let these remarks deter you from tidying up the situation with a divorce settlement, if that's what you really want, though lacking the courage to say so—and submitting the idea as one advanced by your friends. M. H.

TOMORROW: Widow, 44, is eagerly interested in marriage proposal from man 12 years her junior; but her grown sons vigorously object.

To Talk Today
Ida Jean Kain will address women physical education students at The George Washington University today, at 12:10 p. m. in Lisner Auditorium, 21st and H sts. nw.

This is the second in a series of addresses being given under the auspices of the university's department of physical education for women, according to an announcement by Miss Ruth Atwell, executive officer of the department. Dr. Irene Case Namur gave the first lecture on November 5. Miss Kain will discuss "Body Mechanics and Your Efficiency."

Last Round—Mr. and Mrs. Reducing Bout Next Come More Slim Meals

By Ida Jean Kain

THERE are almost as many different diets as there are overweighted, and stretched end to end they would reach as far as the excess beltline inches... or from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ores.

But for all that, there is only one good reducing diet and that's the one you've been following. It's not a diet really, but a pattern of eating with the calories restricted to individual reducing requirements. Still, this being the 10th and last day of the series, you may wonder what to do next...

You can't say—good, now I can go back to eating. You've been eating, and losing weight. You'd have to say—now I can go back to overeating! But that wouldn't save food or your waistline. Why not try more of the same pattern and get your weight down to healthy normal. Have the good meals, but keep them just short of your full requirements. And when you reach normal, these food habits will stand you in good stead—they will help to fix your weight at normal.

It isn't necessary to count calories; just keep the pattern along the right lines. Have a good breakfast, but not too much toast. At noon, have the regular lunch, but eat only one roll, with half a pat-of butter, and skip the rich dessert. At dinner, eat only one starchy food—make a choice of potatoes, bread or dessert. Eat a serving of lean meat or fish or fowl. Since meat is so expensive, eat more fish. If you like buttermilk, fine. If not, have skim milk part of the time, and some whole milk, and cheese. Have plenty of low-calorie vegetables, salads and fruit.

Continue to eat three moderate meals a day, instead of one enormous meal. The habit of overeating at dinner is fattening for the scientific reason that calories are burned according to the body's demand for energy, and those in excess of immediate needs are stored. So follow Secretary Marshall's excellent suggestion and push yourself away from the table!

While Broken Bones Mend Convalescents Volunteer for Chest

By Ruth Allison Hudnut

Volunteering is popular these days with the Chest campaign around the corner and shoe leather at a premium as volunteers gird themselves for a door to door solicitation. But volunteering from a sick bed is something else, and there are people doing just that. They are among the 3000 volunteers registered at the Volunteer Center, 1126 Vermont ave. nw., one of the agencies supported by the Community Chest.

What do they do? Ask yourself what you could do if you had a broken hip, a broken leg, if you were confined much of the time to bed, or if you must be less active because of age.

Some people might sit in a corner and mull over their misfortunes. They might expect some one to amuse them with radio, books, or friends.

Not so these volunteers. They use a large part of their time helping others. They do it willingly with a smile, explaining they are helping themselves too. One might suppose that the Community Chest campaign slogan this year, "Everybody benefits, everybody gives," was made for them.

They do home telephoning. They take long lists of names of people registered at the volunteer center and call them up to remind them there's work in the world to do. Several calls may be needed to reach just one person. Perhaps she is already active and needs no reminders. Perhaps she has slumped, and this call will start her off again.

Caller Suggests Work
The caller asks her what she would prefer to do. Would she like to teach in a settlement—art, music, sewing, cooking? Would she prefer to help with nursery tots? Perhaps she would like to assist in the hospital, carrying trays, answering bells, bathing and dressing babies, arranging flowers. Perhaps she would rather drive children to a clinic or on an outing—children who couldn't go otherwise. Maybe she would be willing to read lessons to a blind student. Perhaps she just wants clerical work—mobile because recently at the age of 78, she made her first airplane trip. Having formed a life-time habit of helping others, she still feels the urge to do so at home. She makes many calls for the Volunteer Center in addition to preparing and mending clothes for the American Friends' Service Committee to be shipped overseas. She has a nice hobby, the kind you would expect from such an ardent volunteer. She collects friendships.

Then there's Mrs. Pauline Mullan, Quarters M, Naval Gun Factory, Navy Yard, Anacostia, who has been seriously ill for a year. She is much better now but must still confine her volunteering to the home. Besides her calls for the Volunteer Center, Mrs. Mullan is an expert knitter and can manufacture in a twinkling articles, not for herself, but for others.

And Mrs. W. B. Hilbert, 1723 North Taylor st., Arlington, Va., did not spend her summer basking on a hotel veranda, but in phoning for the center while she lay in bed waiting for a broken leg to mend. Now that she's up and about, she devotes one evening each week to teaching sewing to teen-age girls in a settlement house. She volunteers at night because all day she's busy working at her daytime job.

Many women employed in daytime give of themselves at night. In fact almost 95 per cent of volunteers are women, partly because they have more leisure, partly because they have greater need of human ties.

And who are the phonists—immobile but not hors de combat? Well, one of them is Mrs. W. H. Myer, 3512 Newark at nw. Mrs. Myer broke her hip last June and must use crutches. Over four months of rest can become boring. Mrs. Myer, however, knows how to spend idle time constructively. She occupies many hours telephoning for the Volunteer Center. She also makes bandages and sponges for the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society. For several years she was area chairman for the Community Chest campaign, pounding the walks from door to door. This year someone else must take over, one of the thousands who will be calling for your Community Chest contribution.

Woman, at 78, Assists
Another home phonist is Mrs. Ethel Hood, 1440 Meridian pl. nw. Mrs. Hood is far from im-

Just Knowing You
I see the sunshine in your smile... Whenever there is rain... And that is why the weather is... No reason to complain... I find my courage in your faith... And I am unafraid... To try this day to multiply... The progress I have made... Your loving words inspire me... To be of nobler worth... And do the more important things... For everyone on earth... The wonder and the happiness... Of knowing you today... Are all I ever need in life... To help me on my way... And so you see how much you are... A part of all I do... And why whenever I succeed... The praise belongs to you.

Rings on Their Fingers

Col. and Mrs. Fred A. McMahon, of Washington announce the engagement of their niece, Mrs. Jane McMahon Hair, to Robert J. Jantzen, son of Mrs. William H. Jantzen of Buffalo, N. Y., and the late Mr. Jantzen. The wedding is planned for early December.

Mrs. Hair is the widow of John Gilbert McGavin Hair, of Manila, Philippines, who lost his life while a Japanese prisoner of war. Since her liberation from Santo Tomas Internment Camp she has been making her home with Colonel and Mrs. McMahon. Daughter of Henry A. McMahon of Miami Beach, Fla., and the late Mrs. McMahon, she attended Mount St. Joseph College in Emmitsburg, Md.

Mr. Jantzen is a graduate of the University of Buffalo and during the war served as a lieutenant commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve in the China-Burma-India theater.

MISS BEVERLY SMITH

Smith-Benington

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Leigh Smith of Alexandria have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beverly May Smith, to Harold Benington, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Benington of Alexandria.

The bride-elect attended Hood College in Frederick, Md., and was graduated from Columbia School of Art in 1947. Mr. Benington attended the University of Nebraska and Wabash College at Crawfordsville, Ind. At present he is studying at George Washington University. During the war he served in the Navy, spending two years overseas.

Murphy-McKeller

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Murphy of Mexico, Mo., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ada Ruth Murphy of Washington, to Robert McKeller of Cottage City, Md.

Miss Murphy has resided in Washington for several years and is with the National Geographic Society here. Mr. McKeller, a graduate of Bladensburg High School, served in the Navy during the war.

The wedding will take place in Washington during the late winter.

Nativity Episcopal Church was the scene Saturday of the wedding of Florence Marie Helgesen Le-Bihain and James Nelson Pugh. Mrs. Pugh is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Helgesen of Washington and her husband is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Stanley Pugh of Scranton, Pa. The Rev. Enoch M. Thompson officiated at the ceremony, and a reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ice blue satin, fashioned with fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore a coronet of matching blue satin with blue veiling and her flowers were yellow roses.

Miss Martha Edelin, cousin of the bride and maid of honor, wore a similar gown of blue satin with Juliet cap adorned with red roses and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Benjamin James of Dickson City, Pa., served as best man, and the ushers were William Pollock and Lamar Smith, both of Greenbelt, Md.

Mr. Pugh served in the Army for three and a half years. He is a veteran of three major engagements, including the Battle of the Bulge.

After a honeymoon at Pocono Manor, Pa., the couple will reside in Washington.

Holman—Eppes

Bethany Methodist Church in Purcellville was the scene of the wedding at 4 o'clock November 1, of Miss Lucy Tom Eppes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Eppes of near Purcellville, and Philip D. Holman, Jr., of Philadelphia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Holman.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gilliam C. Bentley, pastor of the church, which was decorated with white and yellow chrysanthemums, ivy and candles.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin wedding gown, with long pointed sleeves and a fitted bodice. Her full skirt ended in a train and the lace yoke to the bodice was finished with seed pearls. Her fingertip veil of illusion was fastened to a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a white prayer book on which was a white orchid.

Miss Mary Jo Eppes was the maid of honor for her sister. She wore gold taffeta made with a long full skirt and an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Marguerite Cornwell, wearing a fall shade of green taffeta, and Miss Dorothy Patterson, wearing an autumn red taffeta.

David Davison of Philadelphia, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was the best man and the ushers were Joseph Kincaid, James Francis and Frank Eppes, of this county, and George Brummer, of Washington.

MRS. WOODFIN M. SULLIVAN

Air Force Club Will See Show Of Chapeaux

John Fredericks chapeaux will be modeled at the Bolling Field Officers Club this afternoon when the famous hat designer gives a talk on hats at the meeting of the Air Force Officers Wives Club of Washington, D. C., formerly known as the Air Corps Woman's Club. The meeting, scheduled for 1:45, will be followed by a tea and membership cards must be presented or dues may be paid before the meeting.

An invitation to join the Air Force Officers Wives Club of Washington, D. C., is extended to the wives of Air Force officers on active duty in Washington and its vicinity, to mothers, sisters and daughters of Air Force officers on active duty, to widows of Air Force officers, mothers, sisters and daughters of former Regular Air Force officers, officers of the Woman's Army Corps and Army Nurse Corps on active duty with the Air Force, former officers of the Woman's Army Corps and Army Nurse Corps having served with the Air Force, and former members of the Air Corps Woman's Club.

The purpose of this Air Force club is to promote social activities among women of the Air Force living in Washington or its vicinity, and to provide a means for their participation in group welfare work.

Officers of the club this year are Mrs. Carl Spatz, honorary president; Mrs. B. M. Hovey, president; Mrs. J. W. Jones, vice president and program committee chairman; Mrs. J. B. Montgomery, recording secretary; Mrs. J. E. Upston, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Walter G. Bryce, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Wilbur W. Farquhar, new membership committee; Mrs. Patrick Timberlake, hospitality; Mrs. Earl E. Partridge, Teen-Age Club; Mrs. Edward White and Mrs. O. P. 'After Five' Forecast

Jewel Tones to Gleam In Holiday Fashions

By Peggy Preston

BRIGHT, jewel-toned satins and brocades are the important evening fashion news for the coming holiday season. This year, for the first since the war, you're going to see the little "basic black" replaced by rich, colorful gowns, fashioned from many yards of luxurious fabrics. Yesterday's showing of "after five" ensembles at Woodward & Lothrop emphasized this fashion fact. Several black gowns of rustling taffeta, lace and crepe were shown, but the majority were done in exquisite shades of flamingo pink, Nile green, electric blue, mauve and gold.

There was noticeable absence of sequins, jet or beads, a sign that designers are letting the fabrics of the gown itself have full importance this winter. Practically all the skirts were long and full, and under them the models wore stiff petticoats to give fullness and body to the gown. The basque bodice was greatly in evidence and details of almost every dress were used to stress the small waistline.

Accessories for these gowns included small "clutch" handbags of satin, brocade and velvet; white kid gloves, dark stockings, and, for the cocktail and dinner suits, small hats hovering over one ear.

Represented in the show were such designers as Charles Armour, Kiviette, Cell Chapman, Howard Greer, Jack Herzog and others. Armour's costumes dominated the first part of the show, which dealt with tea and cocktail suits. Outstanding among them was a rich, rose-toned brocade, cut with long jacket and full skirt.

Loveliest of the dinner ensembles was a Christian Dior copy, simply made with high neckline, soft shoulders and long sleeves, tight basque bodice and long, full skirt with wide sash at the waistline. Made of heavy satin, it was shown in three colors—pink, green and mauve.

Dinner and evening coats and capes varied greatly in length. Short wrap-arounds were shown in quilted velvet and there were long, full-length capes. One of the most interesting was an ankle-length black satin coat, designed with swing back, soft, narrow shoulders and tailored collar.

Ask Anne Your Questions on Homemaking

In your column of November 4, I noticed an inquiry about breaking walnuts so that the meats will come out in large pieces. I pass the following on to you for what it may be worth: My experience has been that black walnuts should be cracked on the end, using a medium-sized hammer. Upon the first blow or blows, the walnut will halve or quarter. Then crack the halves or quarters and the meat in most instances will come out whole. In this way, a pick is seldom needed.
C. S. H.

Can you give me information on the following: The Fruit-of-the-Month Club, the Candy-of-the-Month Club, the Book-of-the-Month Club, and any other "of-the-month" clubs. I wish to use these as Christmas presents. Have you the addresses of these clubs?
J. P.

The Fruit-of-the-Month Club is operated by the Bear Creek Orchards, Medford, Ore., and sells 3, 4, 5, and 10 box memberships. These boxes are sent at intervals during the year, filled with fruits of the season.

The Candy-of-the-Month Club has offices in the Ambassador Building, St. Louis, Mo., and its subscriptions bring you candies from confectioners all over the United States, at the rate of a box a month.

The Book-of-the-Month Club, one of the oldest of the "of-the-Month" clubs, should be addressed at 385 Madison Avenue, New York, 17, N. Y.

PETUNIA!

To keep my houseplants in the pink, I give 'em something Cold to drink!

Good idea, Petunia! And what could be neater than an ice-cube? That's an especially handy way to water your hanging plants... no fuss, and no drips.
Bishop-Brackens

There's also a Hobby-of-the-Month Club, sponsored by the Hobby Guild of America, New York, N. Y. For $1 a month, this club sends out materials for use in craft work and other hobbies. This month's offering is a collection of shark's teeth to be used in jewelry making. If you prefer, butterflies for art work will be sent instead, or pipe-cleaning material.

The Dress-of-the-Month Club, care Lieber Advertising Co., Chicago, Ill., enables you to purchase a dress by mail each month for prices ranging from $8.95 to $12.98. You're given your choice of several dresses, I understand, there's also a Gadget of the Month Club, but haven't its address.

Where can I get new wooden handles for some old carbon steel kitchen knives I have? The knives are favorites and irreplaceable, but the handles have rotted out.
E. N. C.

If the manufacturer of your knives is still in business, you can probably send them to him and have the handles replaced. I have not been able to locate a Washington firm that does this work and haven't the addresses of any out-of-town firms that rehandle knives, except those of their own manufacture. Perhaps some reader will be kind enough to give us information in this regard.

Can a bedroom suite of good walnut veneer be successfully painted or lacquered? If so, how? I want to remove mirror, cut off too-high legs and paint or lacquer the pieces a rather warm, dark gray, painting gold swags on the front and on the headboard of the bed. They are all very large pieces, of good construction. Please advise if this plan is feasible and give me full directions.

R. H.

Your plan sounds practical and the results should be attractive. A book which I believe will be helpful is "The Complete Home Encyclopedia," by Dorothy Faxon, published by Caxton House, and available in many public libraries. There's a chapter in it on "Restyling and Repairing Furniture" which includes suggestions in greater detail than space permits here. Painting over the veneered surface shouldn't be difficult. It won't be necessary to remove the old finish unless it's very badly marred. Just wash with a cloth

Thursday's Peace Plate

Tomorrow's peace plate, suggested by the Consumers Service Section, Citizens Food Committee, is braised lamb shanks and noodles, a thrifty course-in-one dish that jollies up one of the less-tender cuts of meat. The menu:

- Braised lamb shanks and noodles
 - Brussels sprouts
 - Raw carrot and raisin slaw
 - Apple crumble pie
- BRAISED LAMB SHANKS AND NOODLES
3 lamb shanks
1/4 cup flour
3 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup sliced onions
1 small green pepper, seeded and sliced
1 1/2 quarts boiling water
1/2 pound wide noodles

Have your butcher cut each shank into 3 pieces. Combine flour with 1 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Roll meat in this mixture, and brown thoroughly on all sides in the hot fat. Then add onions and green peppers, and brown slightly. Add boiling water, remaining 2 teaspoons salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper; cover and simmer for 1 hour. Then skim off excess fat; add noodles, cover, and continue cooking about 20 minutes or until noodles are tender. Serve shanks in center of platter with noodles and gravy around them. Serves 5 to 6.

Trials of Royalty

DOES ANYONE remember the tall blonde granddaughter of prewar Germany's Kaiser Wilhelm? Using a minor title, the Countess Lingen, she cut quite a Washington swathe a year or more ago. Actually she was Princess Marina Victoria, daughter of the Kaiser's third son, Prince Albert, and the Princess Adalheid of Saxe Meiningen. Brought up in Switzerland, she worked in an American Club as GI hostess, liked them so much she wangled a quota number to the United States.

"There's no future in being a princess," she told friends naively, "there is such a feeling for royalty in Europe, I could never be myself. The GIs treated me like a woman and I liked it."

Fluent in five languages, she hoped to get a job but even here employers proved leary of a princess. But now her troubles are over, she is married to Kirby Patterson of Springfield, Mo., an attorney, and nephew of former Senator Roscoe Patterson. Meanwhile her uncle, the former Crown Prince Wilhelm, has emerged from obscurity and is trying to pick up pennies from his father's estate. Recently he has petitioned the Dutch to have him declared a non-enemy of Holland so he can visit the Kaiser's place at Doorn. So far, the Dutch have been reluctant and have turned him down.

Negro Women Hold Employment Workshop

The 800 delegates to the National Council of Negro Women's twelfth annual convention rolled up their sleeves yesterday in a workshop session on health and employment held in the Shiloh Baptist Church.

Miss Frances L. Phillips, manager of Household Offices Employment Services in New York, told the audience that the best way to set standards in household employment is to secure the cooperation of employers.

She advised them to utilize the Government and social agencies already working in that field. "These standards must be brought up on the basis of definite hours, definite hourly wage," she explained, "and must include sick leave, vacation and specific statements of detailed duties from the employer."

In answer to a question from the floor, "Have Negro women retained gains made in employment during the war?" Miss Constance Williams, chief of research division of the Women's Bureau, Department of Labor, said, "There are indications that the number and proportion of Negro women employed as factory operatives and in other industries has held the gains made during the war."

She pointed out, however, that at the same time that the number of Negro women employed on farms has greatly decreased.

Mrs. Thomasina Walker Johnson, chief of the minority division, Labor Department, who served as moderator, encouraged the delegates to work to obtain sound legislation such as the FEPC, minimum wages and hours, equal pay for equal work.

She said that there is an inadequacy of training facilities for vocational workers and called upon the women to work for greater facilities.

At the conclusion of the workshop forum the women pledged themselves to organize the unorganized to accomplish their aims for better health and employment conditions.

Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, council president, presided and Dr. Earl L. Harrison, minister of Shiloh

Are You Asking These Questions About Your Community Chest?

Q. How does "everybody benefit" from the Community Chest?

A. Two out of every five families in town use one or more Community Chest Red Feather Services during a given year. They are the direct beneficiaries. Actually, every one of us benefits when we live in a town protected by community spirit and conscience.

Q. What advantage is there in giving through the Chest, rather than directly to an agency?

A. So each of these services won't be separately ringing your door-bell asking for funds. But more important, the good of the whole community rather than the persuasive power of competing agencies will determine how the money is divided.

Q. Why do we have a Community Chest?

A. Because it's the simple, sensible way to raise the money needed by all the Community Chest social, welfare and health services serving our community.

Q. Do Community Chest agencies give charity (alms, relief) ONLY?

A. No. Such limitation of service would be unwise and extravagant. Many agencies give the kind of help that prevents problems before they become acute. However, when relief is needed, it is provided.

Q. May I give my gift to ONE agency only?

A. Yes, indeed. All you have to do is to look through the list of Red Feather agencies, and then write on the back of the pledge card the name of those you prefer. Your contributions will reach the agencies you designate.

Q. How much money do we need?

A. $3,900,000 AND MORE!

Q. Do I have to pay my pledge all at once?

A. No, indeed. You may pay at several periods during the year when it is most convenient. Your word is as good as your bond!

Q. How do I give?

A. During the campaign, a volunteer Community Chest worker will call on you at home or your place of business.

Readers Object to Renaming of Pentagon

Several servicemen have registered complaints with me as a result of the assignment of a new name to the building we formerly knew as the Pentagon. Several high officials were quoted in the press as saying that the name would not be changed. Yet the Pentagon has vanished, and the National Defense Building has taken its place.

But, legally, there is no such thing as the Department of National Defense.

The unification bill set up a "National Military Establishment," headed by a "Secretary of National Defense."

Inasmuch as the building which houses this department still has five sides, my correspondents can't see why it shouldn't remain the Pentagon. And I agree with them.

STREET SCENE

The soda fountain of the F. st. drug store was well populated, and the girl who was knocking the United States had quite an audience.

"...and another thing," she carped, "I'm getting sick and tired of doing without food just so we can send it overseas to a lot of people that are playing us for suckers. I'm hungry, too."

Most of the other customers tried to ignore her; a few glared, as if they'd like to throttle her. "...and here we are being sap enough to lend them money, too. Nobody in Washington has any brains. That's the trouble with our form of government—it's run by a bunch of dopes. Why, take my office for example..."

One of the other customers couldn't take any more. She left her seat and approached the girl who was sounding off.

"You say you work for the United States Government?"

"Yes, I do. Why do you ask?"

"Because I think that if I were as bitter against the United States Government, I'd get off its payroll."

The woman who put the dissent in her place was Mrs. James E. Rodgers of 2000 F. st. n.w. She's a former Wave, and is married to a former OSS man.

ADD SIGNS

This addition to our sign collection comes from "way down Texas way."

Thomas J. Wingfield of 1003 Texas & Pacific Building, Fort Worth, Tex., writes that he wouldn't dream of doing without his mail edition of The Washington Post, and sends along this sign which is displayed on local milk wagons:

"You can whip our cream, but you can't beat our milk."

Leonard Lyons...

NEW YORK—OBIT. DEPT.: Susie, the only trained gorilla in the world, died Wednesday at the Cincinnati Zoo. Susie never received the international publicity which should have been her due. Gargantua was better known. But neither Susie nor Gargantua ever will be mourned as universally as was another gorilla, Joe Daniel. When Eleanor Duse died, Herbert Asbury was assigned to write the obituary. He wrote six columns, but his editor was dissatisfied and reminded him: "Remember, you're writing about the greatest actress who ever lived." Asbury finally wrote an obit which was front-paged, by lifting—word for word—the descriptions of fame, sway over the public and international mourning. The obit was the one originally used for Joe Daniel.

FINANCE DEPT.: A New Yorker yesterday invested heavily in Arthur Schwartz's production of the musical, "Inside U. S. A." After delivering his check he asked Schwartz: "When do I hear the audition?" "There'll be no audition," said the producer. "No audition?" gasped the investor. "Brigadoon" had an audition. "Finian's Rainbow" had an audition. Even "Oklahoma" had an audition. "Ah," Schwartz told him, "but 'Oklahoma' is a much bigger hit than we expect to be."

BOOK DEPT.: Ludwig Bemelmans has a phobia against picture taking. When his daughter Barbara was born, Bemelmans received a letter from his mother, who lives in the Tyrol, asking for a photo of the baby. A few days later, on the table of a waiting room at a camera shop, he saw a stack of baby photos, took one of them and sent it to his mother—who wrote him of her delight and commented on the remarkable likeness. When "Dirty Eddy" Bemelmans' recent book, was ready for publication, his publisher asked him for a photo. At Jack & Charlie's 21 Club Bemelmans found a picture of Charlie Berns, who resembles him—and this was the photo used in some of the ads and book reviews on "Dirty Eddy."

CHATTER: Richard Lauterbach has resigned from Life magazine to become the editor of "47." The French government has designated the Associated American Artists as its agent for all the tapestries it is offering for sale, and which arrived here on the battleship Georges Leygues. The warship also brought the paintings by French marine artists, which will be exhibited at the AAA. Eugene Lyons' new job is roving editor for Reader's Digest. Stravinsky's pop song, "Summer Moon" was introduced by Jennie Tourel, the Met. soprano, at her Lansing, Mich., recital, November 3.

CAN THIS BE TRUE?

One of our esteemed afternoon contemporaries began the month of November by informing its readers that:

"Two Chicago men were fined $178 each for shooting peasants out of season, and they didn't seem particularly disturbed."

Who didn't—the two Chicago men or the peasants?

ABOUT BLIMPS

"One of your readers recently asked about getting a ride in a blimp she had seen over the city," writes W. A. Cockell, Jr., of 1409 18th st. n.w.

"She might have seen a Navy blimp, one of the Goodyear fleet, or one of the ships owned by the Leigh Sky Advertising Corp. of Lakehurst, N. J."

"If it was the first, you can tell her that the Navy doesn't ride civilians. If it was the second, the answer is that the Goodyear blimp has left the vicinity and is now on a barnstorming tour of the East Coast.

"So I'd say the lady's only chance of getting a blimp ride over Washington would be to contact the Leigh company."

"I used to work for the outfit—and that's how I happen to know about the local blimp situation."

LIFE-IS-LIKE-THAT DEPT.

Ever hear of a cab driver who spends his weekends in such places as Rome, Paris, London or Madrid?

A. V. B. of 1749 P. st. n.w. not only heard of him, he rode with him. It's like this:

The guy is a co-pilot on a TWA overseas flight. He has a wife, two children, and another addition on the way.

His pay is $450 a month—which isn't bad, but at the same time is somewhat less than a million.

So when he's not busy piloting an airplane, he augments his income by piloting a cab.

PHILOSOPHY

To hold our balance between extremes

Let's face the facts, but keep our dreams.
